ALGIERS, Feb. 3.—Allied tanks and infantry men have all but encircled the fortress town of Cassino at the centre of the Germans' shattered Gustav line, it was disclosed today, as British and American 5th Army forces extended their beachheads below Rome in the face of increasingly-heavy enemy counter-attacks.

As the German position in the hills around Cassino deteriorated, the invasion forces some 50 miles to the north fought their way inland from the Anzio and Nettuno beachheads through savage enemy resistance.

British troops at the northern end of the beachhead were battling to drive through Campo Leone and cut the electric railway line running down from Rome to the southern battlefront.

American infantrymen 12½ miles t othe south, continued their assault on Cisterna, an important junction

Albertans "To Do It Over Again"

4 Veterans of Sky Warfare Rival "Three Musketeers"

By JACK DeLONG

It was just about impossible to separate those lovable, hard-fighting characters created by Alexandre Dumas in his "Three Musketeers."

Over at No. 4 R.C.A.F. Initial Training School is a quartet of young airmen officers who are about as close in this modern day and age as were the legendary heroes of Dumas back in the seventeenth century.

Grim enemy action over the desert sands of North Africa, over the mysterious jungle coasts of West Africa and out in the fog over the sub-infested stretches of the North Atlantic, failed to finally separate these four young knights of the sky battles.

ANOTHER ADVENTURE

And now these Alberta youths: Flt. Lt. Micky Dlin, 10405 123 street; FO. A. P. Lamoureux, 11251 92 street; FO. J. P. Smith, A.F.M., Kinsella, and PO. W. T. Galliver (United States) A.F.M., 11914 95A street, are starting out together on another great adventure.

The boys must have gotten together after returning to Canada following complete tours of operations and warbled that catching war ditty:

"Let's do it all over again."

At any rate that's just about what they're doing with some variation.

Veterans of the sky wars over Tunisia, the Mediterranean, the West African coast and the long, cold, lonely patrols out from Newfoundland, where they serv-

It's back to school again for the be-ribboned youthful veterans of the aerial wars shown above. The young "repatriates", as they are called, have completed more than 30 operational flights under war conditions, serving for the most part as wireless operators and air gunners. They have volunteered to remuster for pilot training, passing up jobs as instructors for more action over enemy territory. All Albertans, they are just starting out on the new course at No. 4 I.T.S. Several hold awards for gallantry in action against the enemy. The four officers shown in the top picture enlisted in Edmonton together back in 1940; trained and graduated together, and are back with each other on the new course after stirring action overseas. They are left to right: PO. W. T. Galliver, A.F.M. (United States), 11914 95A street; FO. J. P. Smith, A.F.M., Kinsella; Flt. Lt. Micky Dlin, 10405 123 street, and FO. A. P. Lamoureux, 11251 92 street. FO. Lamoureux is a former carrier boy for The Edmonton Bulletin and has a brother overseas with the R.C.A.F. Flt. Lt. Dlin formerly lived at Chipman. He wears the goldfish badge, awarded airmen whose lives have been saved by a rubber dinghy. In the bottom picture, left to right, are: WO.1 W. Beaver-Jones, Calgary; PO. M. E. Traxler, Etzikom, southern Alberta; FO. J. H. Symons, D.F.C., Calgary; FO. R. A. Conlin, Drumheller, and Flt. Lt. A. W. Clifford, D.F.C., Gleichen.

To Be 18 Bushels

Wheat Delivery Quota in West Is Increased

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon said today in the Commons that the wheat delivery quota in the west is being raised to 18 bushels per authorized acre from the present 14 bushels.

Mr. MacKinnon said it was intended to have all points up to the 18-bushel quota by the end of the crop year next July 31, because of increased export movement. The raising of delivery points now on the 14-bushel quota would be deferred until points still below 14 bushels could be raised to that level.

Mr. MacKinnon gave his statement in reply to E. E. Perley (P.C., Qu'Appelle) who referred to reports the quota would be raised to 20 bushels.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon announced today completion of wheat and flour shipments to Russia under the $10,000,000 Canadian-Soviet agreement reached last year.

The shipments were mainly flour, which totalled 154,911 long tons. Wheat amounted to 20,685 tons. Combined shipments of wheat and flour, expressed in terms of wheat, are estimated at 8,739,342 bushels.

Mr. MacKinnon said the flow of wheat and flour to Russia has not been altered by completion of the credit, since it now is continuing under mutual aid.

Many Helping

Canvass City In Assisting John Hipfner

Every section of Edmonton will be canvassed by members of interested organizations seeking signatures on petitions asking for executive clemency for John Hipfner, Edmonton worker, who is facing extradition on a charge of breaking from jail in Wisconsin.

Petitions are now being circulated by the Cloverdale Community League, and also by the Catholic Women's League, and it is expected that support for Hipfner will be forthcoming from all community leagues operating in the city.

The Federation of Community Leagues will meet Thursday evening to consider ways and means of making representations to authorities at Washington and Ottawa seeking clemency.

The Edmonton Local Council of Women met Thursday afternoon to discuss the case, and plan the most effective means of seeking discontinuance of the extradition proceedings.

The Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., at a meeting Tuesday passed a resolution asking for executive clemency. It was stated that no useful purpose would be served in breaking up the home that Hipfner has established during the 12 years of exemplary life since his escape from a Wisconsin prison camp where he was serving a sentence for his first and only crime against society.

MANY SOURCES

Petitions are coming to Edmonton residents from many sources, and Wednesday householders in certain districts were asked by their milkmen and icemen to sign them.

Petitions are being circulated in many of the large industrial and war plants in the city and are being signed freely.

Hipfner, who was released from custody on Sunday on $1,000 bail, will appear again Tuesday next to answer to the warrant.

Clapper

Clapper, 51, was a political columnist for the Scripps - Howard newspapers and for many others which used his syndicated daily piece. (His articles were carried on the editorial page of The Edmonton Bulletin.) But when he died Clapper was on the job he loved best—reporting. Another Four Years of War Ottawa View

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—Marking a change in viewpoint on the war's length and the job ahead of the Canadian people before post-war reconstruction becomes a reality, informed sources in Ottawa now place the possibility of peace no nearer than another four years. This appears to be the situation behind the blunt warning delivered twice already by Prime Minister King: "The war will last much longer than most of us have assumed it would."

Mr. King made this declaration last Monday and repeated it Wednesday. It was more than an attempt to shake down the surging optimism in Canada that the war would be over this year. Of course, the chance exists that Germany will be forced to unconditional surrender this year.

The second front, it is known, is definitely on and the time is getting near. But inside circles in Ottawa have begun to get the Pacific war in perspective, and the unconditional surrender of Japan is now estimated for 1948, and no sooner, unless the breaks favor the Allies and unless Japan is far weaker than the Allies have a right to expect. It is realized to a limited extent in Ottawa that the Canadian people have so far failed to take the sober view of the Pacific war.

$2,000,000 Blaze Sweeps Big Plant

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Explosion-spread flames raced through the Iron Fireman Manufacturing Company's three-block-long liberty ship engine plant last night, injuring several firemen and causing damage estimated at $2,000,000. Mayor Earl Riley summoned all reserve corps before the blaze was under control.

Fire Marshal Fred W. Roberts said the fire started under the floor of the personnel office from "no apparent cause." Nothing was found that would indicate spontaneous combustion was the cause, he said.

Only two of the half-dozen buildings comprising the plant in the downtown waterfront district escaped the fire.

The plant is one of the nation's biggest manufacturers of liberty ship engines.

Only one of the injured firemen required emergency hospital treatment and there was no indication that any workers were trapped.

8TH ARMY PLANS NEW OFFENSIVE, VICHY REPORTS

LONDON, Feb. 3—(CP)—A broadcast by the German-controlled Vichy radio said today reconnaissance showed the British 8th Army was shaping up a new offensive on the Adriatic end of the Italian battle line.

The broadcast also reported 5th Army troops on the bridgehead below Rome were also fighting their way forward between Aprillia and Cisterna with Allied reinforcements pouring into the area.

The Fascists, the broadcast added, have issued a new appeal to Italian youth to rally to the defence of Rome.

995 Persons Die When Earthquake Destroys Town

LONDON, Feb. 3. — (CP) — The Paris radio said today it had been announced officially in Ankara that an earthquake two days ago in Northern Turkey had destroyed 1,500 houses in the City of Gerede, and killed 995 and injured 984 of its 25,000 population. Previous dispatches from Ankara described the quake as severe, but gave no casualty figures.

Speaks in Debate

Alberta M.P. Urges Shorter Working Hours

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Full employment should not mean "eight or 10 or 15 hours a day" for all persons able to work, Walter Kuhl (N.D., Jasper-Edson), said yesterday in the throne speech debate in the commons.

"The purpose of an economic system never was and is not now to provide jobs," he said. "The only purpose is to provide the maximum amount of goods and services with the minimum amount of work and trouble.

REDUCE HOURS

If people were allowed to enjoy the use of machinery, hours of work could be reduced from eight to six and later from six to four. If the farmer were given adequate prices for his products and permitted to buy the machinery he needed, his hours of work could be correspondingly reduced.

A government which compelled people to work when machinery was available was imposing a condition of slavery. The people should be free to choose their own forms of activity.

All the evils of society could not be attributed to private enterprise, said Mr. Kuhl. The abuses of the private enterprise system could be removed and then it would be the best system which could be had.

GENUINE FREEDOM

Only under genuine private enterprise could there be genuine freedom.

Canada probably could produce $12,000,000,000 worth of consumable goods annually after the war and from $4,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 would be required by Canadians to purchase these goods in addition to the present national income of about $8,000,000,000. This additional purchasing power should be made available by the state, Mr. Kuhl said.

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Feb. 3.—Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton told reporters here today "there is nothing wrong with my health."

(McNaughton was relieved of his post as commander of the Canadian army overseas several weeks ago. The official announcement from army headquarters at Ottawa said he was being relieved at his own request because of ill-health.)

McNaughton, back in Canada, was quoted by The Star in a special dispatch to that paper.

The Star quoted him as saying: "I don't know what reasons were given in Canada for my resignation. I am feeling absolutely fit. Any further statement as to the reasons for my resignation should come from those who made the original announcement. I will say nothing."

McNaughton, who is spending several days here with his family, was described as looking fit and in splendid condition.

PLANS NOT DECIDED

Asked regarding his future plans, the general replied:

16-Year-Old Boy Again in Cells

A 16-year-old youth, arrested less than a week after he had appeared in juvenile court charged with stabbing and killing a dog as well as taking part in a series of other offences, threatened to shoot a 15-year-old girl, near Macauley rink, late Wednesday, according to city police. The youth was taken to police headquarters and placed under lock and key.

Information that the boy had a revolver in his possession reached police through the rink caretaker. During investigations, officers were told by two youths that they saw the weapon on the other boy.

The 15-year-old girl told police that the boy pointed the gun at her and said:

"I'll kill you like I killed that dog!"

Police learned that the boy had left the rink to attend a theatre, but upon his return to his home, he was picked up.

The weapon, when found, was discovered to be out of order.

Investigations are continuing.

Bloc Populaire's 1st Convention Opening Tonight

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Delegates to the first convention of the Bloc Populaire arrived in Montreal today from all parts of the province of Quebec, with delegates from Ontario and the Maritimes also expected. A small delegation from Alberta arrived yesterday.

The convention starts tonight with Bloc Populaire leader Maxime Raymond and General Secretary Andre Laurendeau scheduled to address the meeting, one of two which will be open to the press.

The other open meeting will be on Sunday afternoon when delegates will again hear Mr. Raymond and adopt resolutions.

Bloc officials said the purpose of the meeting was to acquaint members with Bloc policies with a view to organizing for political action for the next federal or Quebec provincial election.

PARTY HAS FOUR M.P.'s

The Bloc Populaire has at present four members in the House of Commons, Maxime Raymond, Edouard Lacroix, Pierre Gauthier and Armand Choquette, representing Quebec seats.

It was not known definitely whether Rene Chaloult, Bloc Populaire member of the Quebec legislature, will attend the convention. Recently Mr. Chaloult, Dr. Wilfrid Hamel, Quebec, and Paul Gouin, former leader of L'Action Liberale Nationale, took issue with leadership of the Bloc during the illness of Mr. Raymond.

10 Divisions Encircled In Ukraine

By ROBERT MUSEL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Two Red armies have trapped 10 German divisions of perhaps 150,000 men in a double breakthrough on the Ukrainian front, Moscow announced today, and the Nazis acknowledged the loss of Rovno and Luck to Soviet forces which apparently had advanced about 60 miles in old Poland.

Premier Josef Stalin in an order of the day proclaimed what may prove the greatest Russian victory since Stalingrad in the Ukraine, where his armies crash-through the German lines for advances up to 46 miles and joined forces to throw a cordon of steel around nine Nazi infantry and one tank divisions.

The Moscow and Berlin announcements indicated that the whole German front in South Russia was caving in under the hammer blows of Red armies again driving forward after a relative lull in that area of about two weeks.

Cairo radio reported still another Red army triumph in the north, asserting that German troops had abandoned the Estonian railway junction of Narva, six miles west of the Russio-Estonian frontier.

Cost of Family Allowance Plan Is $200,000,000

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Feb. 3. — Estimated cost of family allowances, forecast in the Speech from the Throne, is $200,000,000 annually. This amount may vary substantially when the scheme is finally enacted. In Australia, for instance, the family allowance is not payable for the first child: but there is no indication that this plan will be followed in Canada.

The rate of allowance will be $1.50 a week, or $6.50 a month, it is expected. This will mean $26 a month for a family of four children. The allowance will not be paid to families with an income above a certain maximum, possibly $1,200 a year. Families in higher income brackets already receive a virtual family allowance through the exemption of $80 per child in the income tax, and $28 in national defence tax.

HIGHEST PAYMENTS

Preliminary studies of the family allowance program show that highest payments will be made in rural areas, where the larger fam-

Alberta Fliers Are Musketeers Of Modern Era

ed as wireless air gunners, the officers are starting in to learn a brand new "trade," so as to speak.

After acquiring all the "know how" about tapping dots and dashes and sprinkling leaden "greeting" cards on enemy fighting planes, the four airmen are taking preliminary instruction in the art of piloting. And they're starting out and going through exactly the same course as any AC2 two days out of manning depot.

BACK FROM "OPS"

The quartet are among more than a score of airmen back from "ops" tours overseas and in the Alaskan and Newfoundland theatres, who have mustered to new courses. Many of them hold the coveted Distinguished Flying Cross awards for gallantry in action against the enemy. There is also a fair sprinkling of air force medals, both Canadian and American. The remusters from overseas are called "repatriates."

What makes the cases of the four under review of particular interest is the fact they all enlisted in Edmonton on the same day.

They were at manning depot together. At I.T.S. they again palled up. Then they wound up their training by graduating in the same wing parade.

Strange as it seems, Lamoureux and Galliver, who had known each other before enlisting, continued together overseas, but Dlin and Smith went separate ways for the time being.

TRIED INSTRUCTING

After exciting adventures galore in the aerial wars the four returned to Canada last summer. Following well-deserved furloughs they reported back to Ottawa. They had a whirl at instructing for a time but that soon seemed a trifle too tame. The four sought remuster as student pilots.

Their requests were granted, unknown to each other, so imagine the surprise and elation of all concerned when they turned up together again at No. 4 I.T.S.

And they went to stay together from now on.

It was on Dec. 26, 1940, that the four excited young men swore allegiance to His Majesty the King at No. 3 recruiting centre in Emonton. Off they went on the same train to No. 2 "M" Depot, Brandon. Here they got "the works" in the way of drill and medication.

Next came a stretch of guard duty at No. 10 repair depot, Calgary. Then the four moved over to No. 2 Wireless school, Calgary, and then the home stretch at No. 4 Bombing and Gunnery school, Dafoe, Sask.

On being posted overseas, Galliver and Lamoureux had the good fortune to be assigned to North Africa, where they went to the 9th U.S. Army Air Force medium bomber group.

RESCUED FROM SEA

Micky Dlin was assigned to duties with the R.A.F. coastal patrol in West Africa. He was rescued from sea after being 70 hours adrift in a rubber dinghy. His Sunderland flying boat had been forced down.

Two of the crew died from exposure but Dlin suffered only slight sunburn. And that was just one of many adventures Flt. Lt. Dlin went through during his long tour of more than 30 operational flights.

PO. Lamoureux had many close shaves while serving as wireless operator aboard a B-25 Mitchell in the North Africa theatre. He was the lone Canadian in the crew of his bomber that made many missions over enemy territory during General Montgomery's great final drive through Lybia and Tunisia. He also participated in the aerial bombardment of Pantelleria and Sicily just before the invasion of the latter island.

His "touchiest" experience was when his plane landed in North Africa with an unreleased bomb clinging to the wing. The bomb "bounced" three times when the plane touched the ground but did not explode.

Galliver suffered shrapnel wounds in the foot and made one crash landing through enemy action. He was silent about the U.S. air medal award.

ON U-BOAT ATTACKS

FO. Smith put in more than 1,500 hours aloft in a big Liberator out over the North Atlantic. Many times his plane attacked enemy U-boats.

"We don't know for certain whether we 'killed' any subs or not. We bombed several," FO. Smith said, but a wide grin indicated almost official certainty about destroyed Nazi undersea raiders.

FO. Smith was also silent about the air force medal award.

"Oh they give a lot of those away," he said.

To Wing Commander Ewart G. Macpherson, commanding officer at No. 4 I.T.S., the "repatriates hold special interest."

A pilot in the First Great War he feels that he himself is a bit of a "repatriate." In other words he is "learning" the job all over again too, in a new war.

Other "repatriates" now taking new courses after completing one tour of "ops" overseas include:

FO. J. H. Symons, D.F.C., Calgary; FO. R. A. Conlin, Drumheller; Flt. Lt. A. W. Clifford, D.F.C., Gleichen; PO. M. E. Traxler, Etzikom, in south Alberta, and WO1. W. Beaver-Jones, Calgary.

Beaver-Jones is a former newspaper reporter on the staff of the Calgary Herald.

oeuvre, breaching powerful German defence lines and enveloping a formidable number of army troops.

The first and second armies of the Ukraine ripped into the German defences in converging drives north westward from Kirovograd and southeastward from Belaya Tserkov.

In five days of bitter fighting they fought through to a junction in the area of Zveniogorodka, 62 miles below Belaya Tserkov and 75 miles above Kirovograd.

They "thereby closed a ring encircling the enemy group which operates north of this line," comprising 10 divisions, Stalin said in his order hailing the feats of Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin and Gen. Ivan S. Konev, commanders of the first and second Ukrainian Armies respectively.

More than 300 towns and villages fell to the two armies which drove forward 31 to 46 miles and expanded their breaches to a width of about 108 miles, Stalin reported.

NAZIS ADMIT LOSSES

Scarcely less sensational was the German high command admission that it had lost Rovno, administrative centre of the Nazi-occupied Ukraine, and the railway town of Luck, 43 miles to the west.

The German loss of Rovno and Luck represented maximum Russian gains of about 60 miles since mid-January, on the basis of the Nazi admission and the last battle positions reported by Moscow.

THREE-WEEK BATTLE

Three weeks ago today the Red Army salient tipped by Sarny angled southward roughly along the Slucz river, a German defence line which had been forced. A crucial battle in the Vinnitsa sector to the southeast has been raging ever since. The Nazi command evidently threw everything it had into that battle, weakening the Sarny-Shepetovka line sufficiently for the Russians to swing it down southwestward through Rovno and Luck.

As Russian tanks rolled across the plains of southern Poland, other Soviet armies to the north poured into Estonia in a developing offensive against the strategic railway and highway junction of Narva and began a drive toward Latvia from Novosokolniki.

The great Red army breakthrough on the southern front, as indicated by the German loss of the two key bases "in the course of embittered defensive fighting," carried the Russian vanguard more than half way across the eastern strip of old Poland occupied by the Soviets in 1939.

VIOLENT STRUGGLE

At Luck the Russians were about 50 miles from the Nazi-dominated section of Poland called the Government General, its boundary delineated by the northern Bug river probably comprising the most formidable German defence line across east-central Europe.

The Red army advance on the southern front—not yet reported by Moscow—highlighted a violent struggle along the whole curving line through the Ukraine and old Poland, according to persistent Nazi accounts.

A German communique admitting the loss of Rovno and Luck said the Russians also were attacking Shepetovka, major rail junction 70 miles west of Zhitomir and 25 miles east of the pre-war frontier.

Can End War This Year—"And Will" Gen. Montgomery Tells His Troops

A SOUTHEAST ENGLAND TOWN, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery told his troops yesterday that they could finish the war in Europe this year "and we will."

"I want you men to know," said the commander of British ground forces in the invasion command, "that I never put any army into battle until I am quite certain if is going to be a good show. We won't have any question of failure. If there is any question we won't start.

"This war began a long while ago. I am getting fed up with the thing. I think it is nearly time we finished it. We could not see at the beginning how it would end. That is not so today. Definitely not.

"Today we can see how this business is going to end. The only thing we cannot see is exactly when. But I would say we must make a great effort to finish it off this year. We can do so—and we will. You and I will see this thing through together."

ilies live. Contrary to a popular notion, the most children in Canada do not live in Quebec. That province, with 29 per cent of the population, has 30 per cent of the children, so the family allowance payments in Quebec will be strictly in conformity with the population.

A substantial beneficiary in family allowances will be the province of Saskatchewan, it is expected, since the population is predominantly rural there and the size of family is above the average.

Family allowances paid in other British Dominions are six shillings a week in Australia, seven shillings six pense a week in New Zealand. The payments are made to the mother of a family, rather than the father and this plan is likely to be followed in Canada.

The principle of the family allowance, as Ottawa sees it, is to provide a national minimum of social welfare for children. Experience in other countries demonstrates that such an allowance does not lead to an increase in the birth rate.

SAFEGUARDS NECESSARY

Safeguards will be necessary in the Canadian scheme to make sure that children actually benefit in better food and care, through the federal allowance. An income of $300 a year or more for an average size farm family from family allowances would represent a considerable cash item since the farm normally provides much of the family's requirements directly.

The allowance will probably be paid for children until they are 16 years of age. This creates a problem, since income tax exemptions are allowable for dependent children up to 21 years of age. Whether uniformity could be achieved is a matter of discussion.

Total cost of the scheme will depend finally on whether parliament is liberal or otherwise in the provisions of the act.

No Applications Are Required For Extra Allowance

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie said in the commons yesterday that discharged soldiers and war veterans entitled to increased allowances which he announced Tuesday, will not have to make application for the increases.

Mr. Mackenzie announced Tuesday that treatment allowances to men discharged for medical reasons would be increased, along with allowances paid under the War Veterans' Allowance act.

The cases of those entitled to the increases will be reviewed by the pensions department and the increases will be made automatically, he said yesterday, in reply to a question from Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre).

Water For Halifax Termed 'Unhealthy'

HALIFAX, Feb. 3—(CP)—A report presented to the board of public utilities of Nova Scotia yesterday described the Halifax water system as "perilous," and "in a very unhealthy state," and warned that it was "vitally important and urgent" to improve the system immediately because of the strategic war position of the city.

600 American Heavy Bombers Raid Nazi Port

LONDON, Feb. 3.—An estimated 600 American heavy bombers shepherded by 500 fighters dropped more than 1,000 tons of explosives on Wilhelmshaven today.

The daylight attack followed a night thrust into western Germany by British Mosquito bombers, which 24 hours earlier had carried out a nuisance raid on Berlin.

United States heavy bombers were seen flying over the Straits of Dover early this afternoon. Two other large groups of R.A.F and Dominion bombers and fighters crossed the southeast coast in the direction of the battered Pas de Calais area of France.

The night operations followed heavy Allied attacks yesterday on the Pas de Calais area of the French invasion coast, spearheaded by four-engined Liberators. No enemy fighters were encountered, but there was considerable anti-aircraft fire and two Liberators were lost.

town astride the Appian Way, and beat off enemy counter-blows against their southern flank at Littoria.

BOTH REINFORCING

Both sides were reported pouring reinforcements into the battle area and it was indicated that the showdown fight for Rome would not be long delayed.

The communique said the Anglo-American beachhead was enlarged yesterday, but did not specify where the new gains were made.

British 8th Army patrols continued to harass the enemy along the Adriatic coastal front.

Striking swiftly to implement Tuesday's break-through along a four-mile segment of the Gustav line above Cassino, the Americans filtered into the outskirts of the town late yesterday, while other armored forces broke into the fortified village of Terrele, five miles to the northwest.

TRAP MAY BE CLOSED

Front reports indicated the Americans already may have cut across the Via Casilina above Cassino and closed a death trap around the Nazis remaining in the town.

German forces north of Cassino threw in repeated counter attacks against the advancing Americans and French in an effort to relieve the pressure on the town, but a headquarters communique said all the assaults were crushed.

"French and American troops have moved so far through the mountains north of Cassino that this enemy stronghold is threatened seriously," Gen. Sir Henry M. Wilson's communique said.

Two Spitfire Pilots Down U.S. Plane After Crew Jumps

LONDON, Feb. 3—(CP)—Two R.A.F. Spitfire pilots yesterday shot down a United States heavy bomber, loaded with bombs, but carrying no crew, which was circling over the English coast for 90 minutes.

The crew had bailed out when three engines failed en route to France and vibration threatened to tear the aircraft apart. The pilot left the bomber trimmed for a level flight and set its nose toward the sea. As he parachuted, he saw the craft bank and turn toward land so he called R.A.F. fighters.

Orderly Plan For Lay-Offs Is Prepared

By JACK BRAYLEY

OTTAWA, Feb. 3. — (CP) — A program for the orderly lay-off of war workers and their transfer to military service or high-priority employment was tabled yesterday in the commons by Munitions Minister Howe.

Here, briefly, are the steps to be taken:

1—Employers will file a report on employees to be laid off, showing their military status and industrial skill.

2—The list of men expected to be discharged will be studied by labor department officials in relation to military and industrial needs.

OFFICERS AT PLANTS

3—Labor officers will be at the plant on lay-off day to tell the workers their destination, whether it be military service or a new job.

4—The plant experiencing a curtailmept of orders and contracts, necessitating a lay-off, will reduce working hours to 48 hours a week, "or to the normal working hours for the industry."

A labor department statement tabled by Mr. Howe said:

"It is not our intention that the least desirable or least efficient workers will be those to be laid off, but rather: first, those persons available for the army; and second, other persons who can be moved to the advantage of or with the least disturbance to the general labor situation."

A labor department directive said that "generally women should not be laid off as long as they can replace men."

Where persons in addition to those on military deferment are to be laid off, they will be discharged on the following priority basis, subject to seniority rights and collective bargaining agreements:

DIRECTED TO FARMS

1—Workers with previous agricultural experience, particularly on dairy farms and in stock raising. These persons will be directed, if possible, to year-round farm jobs.

2—Workers who are needed in other essential industries in the same vicinity.

3—Workers who are required by outside essential industries.

4—Younger workers without family obligations.

5—Married women, if their husbands are supporting them.

6—Older men and women.

In an informative bulletin to war contractors, the labor department said: "Owing to the need of the army for a large number of men, the first step (in arranging layoffs) must be to release those men suitable for the armed forces."

has in store for me." He pointed out that he was still in the Canadian army. McNaughton was unaccompanied by staff officer on his return to Canada by ship.

McNaughton praised the progress of Canadian troops in Italy, but refused to express an opinion on the future course of the war, or the possibility of its conclusion this year.

Gen. McNaughton indicated he plans at some future time to hold a formal press conference. When asked if had any comment on the overseas army's spirits and whether it was still as anxious as ever to get at the enemy, he said:

"I don't think I have the right to make any comment on the situation. I will, however, as soon as I am free to do so.

"When I call in the press and give them an opportunity to cross examine me, you can count on it that I will follow the same procedure that I have followed during the past four years and that is that I will be entirely frank and truthful.

Americans Seize Half of Last Japanese-Held Airstrip on Atoll

By WILLIAM F. TYREE

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

PEARL HARBOR, T.H., Feb. 3

U.S. marines and infantry, backed by tanks and the heaviest air and naval bombardment of the Pacific war, have seized half of the last enemy-held airfield in Kwajalein Atoll in the heart of the Marshalls and begun battles of extermination against Japanese remnants, front dispatches said today.

With the only enemy opposition in strength confined to a shrinking pocket at either end of the 66-mile-long Atoll, complete conquest of Kwajalein, first pre-war Japanese territory invaded by the Americans, was in sight and perhaps only a matter of hours away.

The capture of Roi Island, northern hinge of the Atoll and site of its main airfield, was announced yesterday and other sources revealed that the invasion forces were occupying most of the remainder of the 90 islands and islets in the Atoll as fas as they can get ashore.

JAPS SQUEEZED BACK

The bulk of the Japanese defenders were being squeezed back into narrow corners on the only two remaining strategically-important islands in the Atoll, Kwajalein and Namur, where they were hammered mercilessly by land artillery, naval batteries ranging up to 16-inch guns and block-buster aerial bombs.

(Rear Admiral Tanetsugu Sosa, in a Tokyo propaganda broadcast apparently designed to explain away the lack of effective opposition to the American landings, said Japan "does not mind if America's invasion forces move further because in that case it can severely trounce them at one stroke at the right moment.").

Percy Finch, representing the combined Allied press aboard the joint expeditionary force flagship, reported that the army's 7th infantry division had captured one-third of Kwajalein Island, at the southern tip of the atoll of the same name, by mid-day yesterday and driven the surviving enemy troops to stronger defence positions in the narrow eastern end.

DEFENCES SMASHED

At last reports, Finch said, the invaders had advanced half way across the airstrip inland with the aid of newly-landed tanks.

He revealed that the army troops had splashed ashore on Kwajalein from nearby coral islets without opposition after 5,000 tons of shells and bombs literally had pulverized defences the Japanese had built over a period of 20 years.

Kwajalein, a crescent-shaped island two and one half miles long and a third of a mile wide, was the site of the main headquarters for the atoll and controlled the southern entrance for its lagoon, the largest of its kind in the world and capable of anchoring a huge naval fleet.

Fear Uprising In Costa Rica During Election

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 3—(AP)—Discovery of three illicit arms shipments to Costa Rica, where presidential elections are to be held Feb. 13, was reported yesterday by Carlos Jinesta Munoz, Costa Rican ambassador to Mexico.

Jinesta Munoz said President Rafael Calderon Guardia of Costa Rica issued a manifesto on Jan. 31 calling attention to the possibility of an uprising in connection with the forthcoming elections.

The president said, however, the government has taken measures against possible outbreaks.

Foreign Policy Dominion's Own Gibson Asserts

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP)—Canada is "as much the mistress of her own foreign policy as is any sovereign state in the world of the same size, but neither Canada, nor any other state in the world can, of course, stand alone," Revenue Minister Gibson said today.

In a review of Liberal party policy before the students of McMaster University, Mr. Gibson said foreign policy decisions "as to what obligations should be carried out, are decisions which are taken by the Canadian people and their government."

MAIN PRINCIPLES

He said the main principles of Canadian foreign policy as they have been clarified by the war might be described in this way:

1. As Canada is a democratic nation, her foreign policy must be consistent with the general views of all important sections of the Canadian people.

2. Canada cannot live in isolation from the rest of the world. Although her more direct interests are in the northern and western hemisphere, Canada realizes that a threat to the security of any nation is a threat to the security of all.

3. As one of the world's great trading nations, Canada believes in the urgent necessity of breaking the barriers to world trade.

4. Canada has subscribed to the Atlantic Charter. She believes that prosperity is indivisible, and she is willing to play her part in international activity to promote freedom from want all over the world.

WORLD ORGANIZATION

5. Canada is interested in international organization for the preservation of security and the promotion of prosperity. Canada does not believe that international organizations should be solely in the hands of the great powers or that they should necessarily include all countries. Canada wishes to be represented on all international bodies having to do with subjects in which she has a major interest, and she believes that other countries have the same right.

6. Because their general interests and traditions are fundamentally the same, Canada adapts her policies to harmonize with the other members of the British Commonwealth.

7. Because her security, her prosperity and her way of life are so closely tied up with those of the United States, Canada must maintain friendly and harmonious relations with that country.

can planes in the first bombing of Rome.

The Navy advised Clapper's colleagues today that word of his death was received in a dispatch dated Feb. 3, saying that the accident involved two planes which collided over one of the Marshall islands. There were no survivors. Announcement said:

He is survived by Mrs. Clapper and by a daughter, Janet, 20, and a son, William Raymond, 17.

LONG NEWS CAREER

From the University of Kansas, Clapper went directly to the Kansas City Star, shifting shortly to the British United Press Association, with which he remained until 1933. During his long service with the United Press, Clapper made a reporter's reputation for himself in Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, New York and, finally, in Washington. From 1923 to 1928 he was night manager and chief political writer in the BUP Washington bureau. In 1929 Clapper became manager of the Washington bureau, a position he held until he joined the Washington Post in 1933 as special writer.

From the Post, Clapper in 1936 went to the Scripps - Howard papers as a political columnist. He capped his career with that nationally syndicated column which has been voted by Washington newspapermen as their first choice.

That led Clapper to the radio and his voice, too became familiar to millions. But that was a sideline always. It was as a newspaperman that Clapper was and wanted to be known.

More Than Eighty Vessels in Convoy Blasted at Nazi Glider-Bomb Raiders

ABOARD H. M. C. S. PRINCE ROBERT, Feb. 3.—(CP)—More than 80 ships—convoy and escort vessels—blasted at marauding enemy aircraft when the largest-scale glider-bomb attack launched against a convoy by the Nazis was beaten off with damage to only two of the convoy's ships during a recent running battle in the Atlantic.

Lt.-Cmdr. Peter MacRitchie, aboard the anti-aircraft cruiser Prince Robert, and on the bridge throughout the action, said in a navy press release last night that it occurred as Prince Robert was steaming up to rendezvous with the convoy.

The Nazi planes, favored by good weather, evidently considered the convoy an easy mark, but the resistance put up by Prince Robert, and the Canadian corvettes Snowberry and Calgary changed the picture.

ESTIMATE 32 ATTACKERS

Some estimates had it that 32 enemy aircraft swooped down upon the convoy, but "certainly not all of them returned to their base on the French coast of the Bay of Biscay."

The first glider bomb dropped exploded about 40 yards off the port bows of a corvette patrolling two miles to port of Prince Robert. Prince Robert's barrage caused the aircraft to sheer off.

Glider bombs "plopped all around," and a little later one straggler was damaged when hit by a glider bomb. Three of the crew of a freighter on the starboard wing of the convoy were killed when she was hit but, although belching smoke and flame, the freighter at no time lost station in the convoy.

"It seemed that the Nazis were getting more than they bargained for. They appeared puzzled by the sudden intrusion of Prince Robert, whose high-angle guns were working overtime and to good effect.

BOMBS LAND IN SEA

"The high-angle fire was disturbing them and their glider bombs were still getting out of control and landing in the sea. So they sent three more Heinkels in for a 'look-see,' again on the port side, while a Junkers dodged in and out of the clouds on our port bows, just out of range, and two planes, one of them a Focke-Wulf, came over on our starboard beam.

"We engaged all of them and they all flew away, and as far as we know they never did return.

". . . Our guns, long and short range, were still booming away when we sighted a Heinkel come down on our starboard side on a reciprocal course. He turned his starboard bows towards Prince Robert when he came abeam of us. Then he let it (a glider bomb) go.

"The sight of the projectile coming so close to us had me transfixed.

SUDDENLY VEERED OFF

"It seemed to be coming for Prince Robert, and then of a sudden it veered off and went straight for the convoy. It had passed our bows only 800 yards away.

"It missed us and it headed for a freighter in the convoy.

". . . That freighter looked to me as if already it were in the throes of death. But the bomb turned upwards, passed between the freighter's masts, and ended its crazy career in the water, about 80 yards on the freighter's starboard side, setting up a violent cascade in which the ship wallowed for the next minute."

Canadians With 8th Army 'Bring Home the Bacon'

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Feb. 3—(CP)—Canadian and German front-line troops in Italy fought a battle for a pig and the 8th Army men brought home the bacon.

All day there had been desultory small-arms fire on the front where a Canadian corps is fighting on the right flank of the British 8th Army and toward evening the pig, scared by the noise, broke out of its enclosure in no-man's land.

The battle for possession began with a short burst by a German sniper. The pig squealed louder and tacked toward the Canadian position.

A well-placed shot stopped the porker in its tracks but the problem of bringing home the prize remained. This was solved by artillery fire which caused the enemy to withdraw.

A few hours later the Canadians were eating roast pork.

Government Ready

Dominion and Provinces May Soon Hold Conference On Social, Financial Needs

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced yesterday in the House of Commons that the government hopes to have a general conference between the Dominion and provinces "before long"—the first of its kind since the one on Dominion-provincial relations in 1941.

"The government has been ready ever since the last conference with the provinces to have another conference, and we have reason to believe that the provinces now are ready and willing—some of them I understand—to meet with the federal government in conference to deal with some of the social problems and financial questions that they have had to consider along with ourselves," Mr. King said.

Mr. King said the government will make every effort to speed house business.

Legislation was ready for consideration now. First business would deal with war, then there would be measures relating to the transition period and measures for the post-war period.

SOCIAL MEASURES

In regard to social security measures, Mr. King said the constitution assigned certain responsibilities to the provinces and certain to the Dominion. Mr. Graydon's amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne had protested against invasion of provincial rights. M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, had said government proposals to consult the provinces were passing the buck.

"I leave it to members to say just where the government gets off between those two points of view," said Mr. King. "For my part, the only sure guide is the constitution."

"If the house were agreeable, he could undertake to have all committees set up this week. He could not say when the budget would be brought in but hoped the war appropriation bill and a bill on mutual aid for relief of liberated countries would be passed before the budget.

ESTIMATES SOON READY

The 1944-45 estimates would be ready soon, Mr. King said.

Adjournment would depend on the time, and the progress of debate in the house. A proposed Dominion - provincial conference would be a factor to be considered in respect to adjournment.

Mr. Coldwell interjected that he objected to too great haste in setting up committees and conducting house business generally. The rights of members to express their views should not be curtailed in any way.

HANSON SPEAKS

Hon. R. B. Hanson (P.C., York-Sunbury), former opposition leader, continued the Throne Speech debate with criticism of government policies on civil aviation which he said had resulted in a monopoly being given to government-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Mr. King said he believed the debate on the Throne Speech had been too long in past years. If there were general agreement that the address might be voted upon in short order, other legislation was ready to be brought in immediately.

War measures would have first consideration, followed by those dealing with the period of transition after the war and then by measures of social reform required "if the new era is to be an improvement on the old one—and we certainly hope and expect it will be."

The Prime Minister said he could not say whether it would be advisable to adjourn the house when he goes to London to attend a conference of Empire prime ministers later.

QUESTION OF ELECTIONS

Mr. Hanson said the throne speech was intended to be taken by the electorate as the basis of an early general election appeal, and had the "earmarks" of an attempt to raise new issues and take away recollections of the errors and omissions of the administration during the last four years. He said an election at present or in the immediate future would be a distinct detriment to successful coonduct of the war.

Mr. King interjected that he had said he wished no election in wartime and parliament had until June, 1945, to run. He had said he did not wish to continue beyond that time.

"I do not want the impression to go abroad I had given an undertaking that there will be no election before June, 1945," the prime minister said.

Mr. Hanson replied: "The prime minister left the door wide open, and I suggest to him that he could always find an excuse."

GOVT. "SUGAR-DADDY"

Mr. Hanson said the government had been "a sugar-daddy" to T. C.A., which was not subject to control of parliament. The board of transport commissioners had practically nothing to say about its operation.

Privately-sponsored air transport had been put in a straight jacket. A monopoly in air transportation was wanted no more than in railway transportation.

Mr. Hanson said the proposals of Lord Halifax on Empire unity as made at Toronto last week should not be rejected "practically out-of-hand" as had been done by Prime Minister King. It might be found Canada could not escape such proposals. It was unthinkable that the Commonwealth should go into the peace conference a divided Commonwealth.

Walter Kuhl (N.D.—Jasper-Edson) said full employment should not mean "eight or 10 or 15 hours a day" for all able to work. The purpose of an economic system was not to provide jobs but to provide the maximum amount of goods and services.

A much shorter work day than eight hours could be looked for. With full use of machinery it might be reduced to six and later to four hours, he said.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier (Bloc Populaire—Portneuf), in his address in the Throne Speech debate, cautioned against mass post-war immigration—especially an immigration of peoples not inclined towards farm work.

Senate Debates Post-War Work, Housing Needs

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, Feb. 3. — (CP) — Women should be given equal opportunities with men for post-war employment, Senator Iva C. Fallis (P.C.-Ontario) said yesterday in the Senate in the debate on the address in reply to the throne speech.

Senator C. C. Ballantyne, Progressive Conservative leader, urged the government to call a conference with provincial and municipal representatives to discuss housing problems. Immediate steps should be taken to meet housing shortages in large cities, and a long-range post-war program should also be drafted, he said.

Senator Ballantyne also suggested that the government allow men in the army in Canada who have not volunteered for overseas service to take other work.

HOUSING PROGRAM

Dr. J. H. King, government Senate leader, said the government had recognized the necessity for a housing program. Little housing construction had been carried on during the past four years but material was not yet available for it to be resumed.

Canada had provided leadership in plans to care for returned soldiers, Dr. King said. It was unfair that any person or group should go about offering programs for veterans without making any reference to the provisions the present government has already made.

Senator Fallis said she favored much of the program outlined in the throne speech but she would like to see more emphasis on remedying unfavorable conditions which made it possible for the individual to help himself.

EXTEND SERVICES

While in some instances cash grants to individuals were essential, best results could be obtained by extending public services and supplementing them with cash grants.

In a private survey, between 50 and 80 per cent of women employees in a group of Ontario factories had said they wished to continue work after the war.

"Returned men should have first priority on jobs but after that there should be no sex discrimination," she said.

Quebec House Begins Debate On Imperialism

QUEBEC, Feb. 3.—(CP)—The legislative assembly yesterday began debate on a motion presented by Rene Chaloult, Bloc Populaire member for Lotbiniere, protesting against what he termed "the new imperialism" of Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States.

Six government bills also were given first reading and a score of private measures received second reading before the assembly adjourned until Thursday.

WANTS INDEPENDENCE

The lone Bloc Poulaire member said he hopes "Canada will declare her independence after the war and will join the Pan-American union."

Mr. Chaloult said the project suggested by Lord Halifax last week was "inspired by the government of London."

"Canada's interests are not necessarily those of England," he added, "and the new imperialism proposed by Lord Halifax is dangerous for us, even from the economic point-of-view."

Hon. Oscar Drouin, minister of municipal affairs, trade and commerce said the Halifax proposal was "a concerted plan to make us accept a new version of the Westminster Statute and to make us lose the liberties our ancestors won for us."

VIEWS NOT DICTATED

Mr. Drouin said that Prime Minister Churchill in the British House of Commons Tuesday "made it clear that Lord Halifax's views were not dictated by London." However, he said, recent speeches by "imperialists" were "a clever campaign" to force the British dominions towards a "dangerous imperialism" and " I hope that English-speaking provinces of Canada will not let themselves be fooled by those new tactics."

Eden Declares British House Can Be Proud

LONDON, Feb. 3—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden said yesterday that looking back over the four years of war "I think this house (the house of commons) has reason to be proud of its record."

He said parliament had been "Virtually alone, certainly alone in Europe, as a parliamentary institution which has kept going despite enemy action and has discussed domestic and international problems however difficult the situation may have been."

"I believe that in the world at large there is real respect for the British parliament," he added. "I believe it stands high."

He spoke during debate on a motion approving appointment of a committee to consider electoral reform and redistribution of parliamentary seats. The foreign secretary said younger men are needed in the house and for that reason he believed electoral expenses for candidates should be reduced.

The Wheat Surplus

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics foresees as "fairly certain" the disappearance of the wheat surplus that has accumulated in Canada over several years. This, the Bureau thinks, is likely to occur during 1944. The officials are apparently convinced on the point, for they assure the public there is nothing "alarming" in the prospect, and no danger of a wheat shortage such as occurred in 1917-18.

This conclusion has no doubt resulted from the mid-winter drought over a large area of the wheat belt in the United States. That the "mountain" of Canadian wheat would dwindle away as shipments are made to Russia, India and the overrun countries in Europe has long been recognized as certain. But that it might entirely disappear or practically disappear this year has not hitherto been suggested. The poor outlook in many of the wheat states, coincident with growing demands oversea, has reversed the wheat situation of a year ago.

Canadian farmers will of course be cheered by the prediction that the surplus is to vanish. This huge amount of unsaleable wheat has hung over the market as a threat, depressing prices, compelling the establishment of a "pegged" low price in Canada, and dictating measures to curtail the acreage sown to this cereal. With spring only a couple of months away, it is probable that acreage will be substantially increased when sowing time arrives, because of the changed outlook.

If the forecast of the Bureau proves correct, a crop of the proportion of 1942, this year, will be very much in the national interest as well as that of the growers.

The Show-Down ?

By invading the Marshall islands Allied forces—chiefly but perhaps not exclusively American—have carried the war into Japanese territory. These islands were mandated to Japan at the close of the First great war. It is known that—contrary to treaty restrictions—they have been elaborately fortified over the intervening years. Vith a view, which became clear two years ago, to using the group as a support base in the long-calculated war of conquest planned at Tokyo.

For this reason the invading force had to be a strong one. The ground troops are placed at 30,000, while the operations are covered by clouds of planes and a fleet composed of ships of all types from small craft to plane-carriers and battleships. That only twenty-six months after Pearl Harbor it was possible to assemble a force of such power in the mid-Pacific, with the war in Europe still to reach its climax, must in itself be disconcerting to Premier Tojo and his braggart associates.

This is something they didn't count on. But the war has come home to them, for there are no formidable barriers between the Marshalls and Japan itself, and what they are going to do about it is a question they have to answer within a time-limit. Unless powerful naval and air forces are rushed to the islands these will be lost. If lost, the Japanese base will become an Allied outpost established on the inner side of Japan's arc of island defences. Unless the invaders are driven out Jap prestige will suffer throughout the whole South Pacific, confidence at home will sag, and Rabaul and Truk will lie open to two-way attack.

It is entirely possible, even probable, that Japan's carefully husbanded battle fleet will be sent to the rescue. The Allied commanders of course counted on this possibility, and are ready for the showdown if Tokyo decides that this is the time and the Marshall islands the place. If the battleships are not sent to expel the impudent invaders of the Mikado's dominions, it will be because Tojo does not dare to risk losing them and thus losing the war.

Russia Decentralizes

The Russian constitution is to be remodelled, somewhat on the pattern of the British Empire. The sixteen republics comprising the Union are to become independent states, like the British Dominions. A difference is that the central Government will retain power to declare war and make peace; which involves also power to control or veto the foreign policies of the otherwise sovereign states. There is no such central authority in the British Commonwealth.

Observers see in this raising of the sixteen republics to autonomous standard a plan to gain for Russia an equal number of representatives in the peace conference and in whatever international organization may be set up to maintain order in the post-war world.

The broader significance is that Russia—like every other country that has vitality—is in a state of transition. It has moved so far away from the Communism of Lenin that the resemblance is less conspicuous than the difference. A trend toward regional self-government is logical, inevitable, and hopeful. It is a sign that the leaven of democracy is working, that the necessity of a centralized dictatorship is seen to be passing, and that the problems of satisfactory development are too many to be handled by one administration. Russia is too big a country to be ruled from one centre.

Perhaps the Russians also have in mind that there will be less suspicion abroad as to future Soviet policy if Russia is chopped into independent areas, each dealing with other countries in its own right. Sixteen governments functioning in this way are less likely to hatch aggressive impulses, or to carry on disruptive propaganda in other countries, than a single bureaucracy wielding complete control over 200,000,000 people.

Decentralized governing power is not the atmosphere in which war-makers flourish and a nation becomes a menace to its neighbors. The spreading of authority among so many ruling bodies implies that the Russians mean to mind their own business and live at peace with the rest of the world.

Sap is running in the "sugar bush" patches in southern Ontario. The ration officials must have a pull with the weather department. Just when they doubled the coupon-value, the syrup-making season opened.

The Rome radio says ten Italian patriots were executed by the Fascists and that seven generals and five admirals are on the waiting list for trial. The Mussolini gang have probably decided that their fate is sealed anyway and a few more killings will not make death any more certain or unpleasant.

For the first time Allied bombers have pounded Japanese installations in the Caroline islands. That is the group in which is located Truk, the most powerful of all enemy bases in the island arena. The raid is notice to Tokyo that the creeping barrage from the south and east is ranging perilously close to this key stronghold. The fighting front has moved up about half way from the Solomons to Japan. The new targets are within range of land-based bombers from airfields in the Gilberts.

The office of war information reports that the United States has lost four times as many work-hours from industrial accidents as from wartime strikes, that industrial accidents have killed five thousand more people since Pearl Harbor than the guns of the enemy, and that 60 times as many have been injured by such accidents as have been wounded in battle or reported missing in action. Add the thousands who have been killed in highway accidents, and the scores of thousands injured, and it becomes apparent that the difference between peace and war is not the difference between personal safety and danger.

No New Zealander Would Surrender Social Security

Noted System Not Product Of Socialism or Left Wingers

By B. T. RICHARDSON

In Auckland, New Zealand, a city of natural charms, one of the most beautiful spots is Bastion Point overlooking Auckland's harbor. A. G. Osborne, prime minister's praliamentary undersecretary, and H. I. Forde, of the prime minister's department, were informed guides during our visit and they were enthusiastic New Zealanders. "Let us have a look here," they said. So we got out of the car and walked across to the impressive monument on Bastion Point. It is New Zealand's tribute to Michael Joseph Savage, architect of New Zealand's modern social security system. Savage became prime minister on Dec. 6, 1935, died early in 1940. Here was a tall monument to him already, only the landscaping postponed till after the war. It reflects the passionate faith that New Zealand labor placed in Savage and social scurity. Not waiting for posterity to judge this great man, they raised a graceful monument to him without delay.

Much is made of New Zealand's social security system pro and con. One attitude is: "Look at New Zealand, ain't it grand, gee." Some people there wonder what all the shouting is about outside New Zealand. Incessant talk that New Zealand is a "laboratory of social experiment," makes some New Zealanders self-conscious. The guinea pigs get tired of it all sometimes in the wire-netted cages. Many are tremendously proud of the system; others believe it leads into the dead-end of the bureaucratic state, but admit there is no going back now.

Inside New Zealand, no one would abandon social security. At the same time, controversy proceeds (as in the recent election campaign) over the provisions, the financing and admiinstration of it. If Canadians and Englishmen and Americans are arguing over New Zealand social security, so are New Zealanders. Is New Zealand socialistic? The answer is no.

The typical New Zealander believes his country is progressive. The state owns the railways, some coal mines, and many public services. Co-operation is well developed among producers. The principle that the state is responsible for looking after its citizens "from the cradle to the grave", to use Savage's world-famous phrase, is well established. But this is designed, according to all accounts, to improve capitalism. Dr. A. M. Finlay, whose booklet on social security in New Zealand explains and warmly defends it, wrote: "Social Security is evolutionary, not revolutionary. It is set in the framework of existing capitalist society . . . will modify the harsher results of capitalism by taking some of the money, after the system has distributed it, and redistributing it, but it will not alter capitalism itself . . . to the more fortunately situated Social Security guarantees the continuance of their wealth and power." This is social security in the New Zealand version. In this country, capitalism flourishes. The means of production remains outside the scope of socialization, and there is no sign of any change in this respect.

The foundation upon which Mr. Savage and his Labor government built was laid firmly by previous governments, none of them Labor and none of them socialistic. New Zealand started old age pensions in 1898, at $1.22 a week for persons over 65 years. Pensions for widows started in 1911. Pensions for the blind have been paid since 1924. Family allowances first appeared in 1926, at 2s. per child. The Savage government gathered these benefits, which had been increased from time to time, into one Social Security Act, 1938, (in force April, 1940) adding others the most striking one being universal superannuation. The health benefit scheme, over which controversy still rages, is administered by the Health department. Mental hospitals were made free in April, 1939; free doctor and hospital services in maternity cases started in May, 1939; free in-patient hospital services started in July, 1939; and for out-patients in March, 1941; free medicine started in May, 1941; free doctor's services in November, 1941; free X-ray diagnosis in February, 1942. The original Labor program is still incomplete. Funeral benefits, free X-ray treatment and many alterations in existing benefits have been proposed by the N.Z. labor party. The basic benefit in the N.Z. scheme is £1 12s. 6d. a week or $5.72 Canadian at present exchange rates. This sum is the 1970 objective in the universal superannuation scheme, and it is paid, now in the old age pensions, invalids' pension (which includes blind people) and the miners' benefit. The unemployment benefit is £1 or $3.52 a week. These values, of course, do not offer a comparison of the real purchasing power of income in New Zealand. In Canadian funds, for instance, the price of butter was 27 cents a pound in Wellington, N.Z.; 29 cents in Brisbane, Australia, when it was 57 cents in Ottawa.

Social security in New Zealand translated into Canadian money, weekly:

Universal superannuation (1944): (This represents $61.60 annually, or £17 10s N.Z. This pension, available for all New Zealanders with 10-year residence qualification, will rise on graduation scale to a maximum of £84 10s. in 1970. This would be $297.44 at present exchange rates, or $5.72 a week.)

Age benefits (old age pensions)	$5.72
Invalid's benefit	5.72
Wife and dependents, each	1.85
Widows	5.28
Each child	1.85
Orphans	up to 2.77
Family allowance (each child)	1.32
Miner's benefit	5.72
Sickness benefit	3.52
Wife	2.64
Each child	1.85
Unemployment benefit	3.52
Wife	2.64
Each child	1.85

In addition, the schedules include sickness benefit of $1.85 a week for persons without dependents from 16 to 20 years, and an unemployment insurance benefit of the same amount for the same category. This covers the class between children under 16 and adults over 20. The Social Security commission has power to grant emergency benefits not specifically provided, and it regularly does so.

A Look at Greek Fare

They Had Word to Say About Food and Art Of Cooking

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Somehow or other the Greek, as a chef, has not really sold himself and his wares to the public. The Frenchman, the Italian, the German and so on have all done much better in establishing reputations for cooking.

One reason for this may be that the Greek has been overly anxious and instead of doing what he should be able to do best, that is, his native dishes, giving the public some unusual taste thrills, he has ignored his culinary heritage and undertaken to provide "rust-biff," "abble-bie" and "cups-kawfee."

As a matter of fact, the Greek chef of today can trace his ancestry back to some of the true, all-time stars of the art of providing fine food. Wasn't it Orion, the Greek, who first made white sauce, which is even to this day one of the four basic sauces? And had it not been for Lampriadas, another Greek of the olden times, brown sauce might even now be still unknown. And what would the French chefs of the present day do for sauces without that great basic sauce to use for foundation?

To this day, a resident of ancient Corinth, Nereus by name, is famous for what he could do with fish and a colleague of his, a man who lived on the Island of Rhodes, showed the world of that day how to make fillets of fish, getting rid of the bones, and what a great boon he and his work still are.

Men Cooks

Strangely enough, too, just as one hears today Greek cooks only of the male gender, all the names of great Greek cooks of the ancient days indicate that men led the way in food preparation.

This must not be allowed to create the impression that the Greek men of that time were female impersonators who clung to the warm spots behind the kitchen stoves. On the contrary, no less an authority that Homer himself tells of the ability of Achilles when it came to broiling steaks and roasting meats.

The one rare exception to the preparation of food by the men seems to have been Circe, who, it is assumed, was a woman. And in that case, her cooking was not along legitimate lines. It seems that she could prepare only one dish—and that was reported to have been a mixture of red wine, ground barley, cheese and honey, to which she added "mighty drugs withal."

As travelers ate of this dish they forgot all about the folks at home. It is reported on excellent old-time authority, they turned into pigs. Some modern students of the culinary art advance the idea that "turning into pigs" or, more accurately "swine" may have been more or less metaphorical, just as even today little boys who come upon a shelf of fresh-baked pies are said to make pigs of themselves.

Native Cooking

Probably the most famous of all the ancient dishes, the "Black Broth" of the Spartans was, it is understood, prepared by the men themselves in their central eating place. There seems to be no surviving recipe describing just what this broth was and how it was made, but it is known that it was the core and back-bone of the food which made Sparta great.

One of these days there is due to appear on the restuarant scene a Greek with cooking skill and with imagination. He will bring the modern interpretation of the fine dishes of the ancients, plus what native Greek cooks have done in recent years with their local foods.

Then the public will come to learn the goodness of lamb and beans, cooked as the Greeks cook this dish, of the goat's milk cheese and the wrinkled salty olives and the native wines of Greece. They do unusual things with rice and with tomatoes and with bits of chicken livers.

They have a way with them when it comes to chicken and vegetables which indicates a school entirely different from the Italian and French schools. Oil and onions and countless herbs are cunning devices in their hands.

I would like to prophecy that some day there will appear a sign over a restaurant and that sign will announce that here is native Greek Cooking.

The street musician was tired, and the motorist agreed to give him a lift to the next town.

As they were racing at terrific speed down a hill, the motorist suddenly shouted above the noise of the car: "What instrument do you play?"

The musician shouted back: "The violin!"

The driver crouched over the steering-wheel, peering ahead. He yelled: "That's a pity!"

"Why is it a pity?" demanded the musician.

"It's a pity you don't play the harp!" yelled the motorist. "The brakes won't work!"

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Argentina Broke With Axis in Time to Head Off U.S. Blast

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—Inside story on Argentina is that, on Friday, Jan. 21, the state department prepared a blistering statement on the double question of Bolivia and Argentina—refusing to recognize the new government of Bolivia, and blaming Argentina for interfering in Bolivian affairs.

Drew Pearson

That statement was sent across the street to the White House, where it lay for more than a day, awaiting the President's approval. If Roosevelt approved, the U.S. planned to punish Argentina by freezing all her credits in the U.S. A., which would have been the most severe action ever taken by this country against an American nation since the Good Neighbor policy was inaugurated.

But the President did not flinch. He had been goaded for months by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and by public opinion. It never leaked out but, once before, the administration was ready to crack down on Argentina, while Secretary of State Hull was in Moscow. But when Under-Secretary Ed. Stettinius wired his chief in Moscow, Hull radioed back that, under no circumstances, must there be any move against Argentina.

This time, however, both Hull and Roosevelt agreed, and the White House okayed the document Saturday afternoon, sent it back to the state department. Plans were laid for its release on Sunday. This would have frozen all Argentine funds at the opening of banks Monday morning.

However, it meant that certain state department officials, particularly in the current information division, would have to forego their Sunday rest and put in extra time releasing the story on Sunday. So the withering blast at Argentina was delayed until Monday noon.

Because of the delay, it was arranged for the banks unofficially to hold up all Argentine transactions early Monday morning until they received official notice to freeze Argentine funds Monday afternoon. But during Sunday the British, having heard that the state department at last was going to be forthright with Argentina, made representations regarding the effect on the British economic position in Buenos Aires.

Phone Call

Then, suddenly, on Monday morning Secretary Hull's telephone rang. It was U.S. Ambassador Norman Armour calling from Buenos Aires. Armour told Hull that Argentine Foreign Minister Gilbert had gotten up early that morning and called Armour to the foreign office to tell him that Argentina had finally resolved to break relations with the Axis.

Hull put down one phone and picked up another. It was his private phone to the White House. He told the President what he had learned from Armour. The President ordered an immediate switch of policy. If Argentina was ready to make even a gesture of being pro-democratic, Roosevelt didn't want to slap her face. So he instructed Hull to strike out all reference to Argentina in the statement. Result was a tamely worded blast against Bolivia alone.

What undoubtedly happened was that the banks had tipped off the Argentines. Cables had gone out to U. S. banks in South America Saturday and Sunday.

So now the Argentine Government has been able to save its skin and continue in power. Actually, however, despite the official break with the Axis, diplomats agree that undercover relations with the Axis will continue just about the same, and that the Argentine Fascists will be busier than ever stirring up anti-U.S. feeling in Bolivia, Paraguay, Chile and Brazil.

Note: Ed Stettinius, hard-working Under Secretary of State, carried the ball inside the State Department against the appeasers.

Merry-Go-Round

Carroll Parran, wife of the Surgeon General, is an efficient aide to Robert Sherwood in OWI . . . Ed Stettinius, Under Secretary of Stata, discovered that ambassadors returning to Washington had no space in the State Department building. With one phone call, he fixed up a suite of six rooms . . . Washington real estate agents are evading price ceilings by requiring new tenants to decorate apartments at their own expense . . . To pack 'em in tighter, a Washington bus driver called out, "Push to the back, folks, and get together like you were in church." Polish Prince Alexander Hohenlohe is proving himself a "goot" shot from the duck blinds along the Potomac River. Taking along a bottle of beer for breakfast, he shoots from blinds of Sportsman Paul Kite near Belvoir. The Prince's wife, Peggy, is stepdaughter of ex-Ambassador Tony Biddle. . . .

Can't Defend Armies and Cities

Luftwaffe Faced With Impossible Job in Raids

By Squadron-Leader John Strachey in London Calling

It's part of my job to study the photographs of bombed German cities. I have in front of me now a photograph of the industrial area of Kassel. Kassel is an inland town of the same type as, say, Wolverhampton, or Leicester or Derby—medium sized, highly industrial, a tangle of streets and railways and engineering works.

The photograph I am looking at was taken eight days after Bomber Command's last attack on the place. Patches of smoke still hang over some streets; but they're transparent and beneath them lies the shell of what once was a town. The railway stations are crumbled. In the great engineering plants every other shed is gone; and, inevitably, the buildings which housed their workers are now mere rows of gutted skeletons.

As you look at this picture you almost smell the bitter, raw smell that once we knew in Britain; you can almost feel again in your throat the dust and grit of the Blitz. Hitler did it all to us, to the very limits of his power; but this is destruction such as we in Britain never knew—not of course, that that's the reason why we're doing it to him now. On the contrary, we bomb because we could not possibly leave the factories of Germany intact for a single hour after we had the power to destroy them. For these factories are pouring out weapons which at this moment are being used to kill and main our men, and the Russians, and the Americans, on all the battle fronts of Europe. We could not look our men in the face if we hesitated for a moment.

One by one, the main centres of German production must be destroyed. The cities of the Ruhr have gone. Now Hamburg and Hanover and Kassel have gone too. Many more will go.

What does it mean? How far has it affected the Germans? Is it winning the war for us? No one can answer those questions with certainty for the simple reason that nothing like this has ever happened before. Neither the German bombing of us three years ago nor our bombing of Germany a year ago are real guides. Then damage was done to this factory or that; now centres of production as a whole are being destroyed. How long can the people of Germany bear it?—or rather, how long can they bear it on top of everything else they have to bear? We don't know; but there's one way of making an estimate. You can judge how much you're hurting your enemy by noting how much of his effort he devotes to trying to stop you, and by that test the combined Anglo-American bomber offensive is the thing which the Germans fear most of all today.

For the German High Command have massed their fighters over their cities, to protect them against our bombs. And in so doing, they have largely deprived their armies of air cover. It has been a fascinating experience to watch the steady shift of the German fighter force away from the battle fronts and towards the cities of Germany. That shift began almost a year ago. It was as if an invisible magnet was drawing the German fighter squadrons from their armies. The magnet was the threat to Germany herself represented by the British and American heavy bombers based on these islands.

Today three times as many German fighters are over their centres of production as are over their armies. The Nazi government has been faced with the choice of attempting to protect either its cities or its armies; for it knew that it could not protect both. The Nazi government has chosen to attempt to protect its cities, and that has meant largely abandoning its armies.

Think what that means; it means that even if the near 2,000 German day and night fighters which are now massed over other cities had prevented us from doing any damage at all in Germany, our bomber offensive would still be having a disastrous effect upon the Nazis—simply by drawing off their fighter strength.

For the once invincible German armies have been largely deprived of adequate air cover. Those Nazi armies are conducting long, difficult retreats, back from the conquered lands, back from the Dnieper, back through Italy, back to a line on which they hope to defend the inner citadel of fortress Europe. As the columns of men and vehicles wind back, every road, every railway bridge, every railway is a target for the Russians; the American and the British medium and fighter bombers; the Focke Wulfes and the Messerschmitts which ought to be defending them are all over Kassel or Hanover or Schweinfurt.

It is all a grim struggle for the complete mastery of the air by day and night. The first object of an air force is to destroy the enemy's air force; but that is only a means to an end. For when you have struck down your enemy's air force, you will be able to destroy his factories and cities at will; and that means that he will be absolutely and utterly at your mercy.

In that sense air war has become completely decisive. It is decisive in the sense that no country can survive the complete loss of the command of the day and night air over its cities. The final proof that this has become true has been given by the development which I've just described, namely the moving of squadron after squadron of German fighters away from their armies to cover their cities. For the German High Command knew two things; they knew that the air is the only defence against the air, and that defeat in the air over Germany would be final and total defeat.

All this may sound as if one were saying that the air war is the only thing that really matters. But of course not. The German dilemma of where to put their fighters prove just the opposite. It proves that the air attack on Germany from the west, and the land attack from the east, react on each other, help each other, and depend on each other.

Perhaps Germany could save her cities from us if her armies were not being hammered by the Russians in the east. For then she could devote all her resources to air defence. Perhaps Germany could save her armies from the Russians if her cities did not face our air onslaught in the west. For then she could devote all her resources to land defence.

There may not yet be a war on two fronts; but there certainly is a war in two elements; and that may prove equally fatal to Germany. In the same way, when we start our land attack in the west, it will not be an alternative or a substitute for our air attack. It will be still another attack against which Germany will have to try to provide fighters, guns and all the rest of the vast apparatus of defence.

Sooner or later the Germans will crack under these diverse, many-sided attacks. But we may have to go through one more period of great trial before the end. Nor do we know whether the enemy's defences will crack first in the air or on land. Will the enemy's air defence over his cities break down and enable the British and American bombers to destroy every vital factory in Germany? Or will the German divisions disintegrate under the land and air attacks of the pursuing Russians? Who can tell? And perhaps it does not matter so much. But what is worth noting is this. If the crack comes on land, in the east, our air attacks will have played their part in the Rusian victory. In exactly the same way, if the crack comes first in the air in the west, the Russian armies—and of course, our own armies in Italy—will have made possible the victory of our bombers.

In a word, there are not two wars but only one war. Long ago, Maxim Litvinov said, "Peace is indivisible". So also is war. Victory on land makes possible, and is in turn made possible by, victory in the air.

Russians Give Finns 6 Weeks Get Out of War

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 3.—A report bearing more than the usual earmarks of authenticity circulated in diplomatic circles today that Russia has given Finland six weeks to get out of the war or face the consequences.

Finnish quarters in Stockholm acknowledged that word of the reported ultimatum had reached them and it therefore could be presumed that the information also has reached Helsinki, though what means Moscow utilized to warn the enemy capital was not learned immediately.

With the Finnish parliament now in session, the report was expected to be given serious attention by that group's foreign affairs committee.

LIKELY TERMS

Most sources believed Russia would approve nothing less than her 1940 frontiers, retaining the land taken from Finland after their brief war in 1939-40, and with occupation of Hangoe at the entrance to the Gulf off Finland left open.

If Finland proved unwilling to negotiate a separate peace on this basis, she would have to face the prospect of fighting to the end with the Soviets inevitably dictating the final peace, it was said.

The Russian advance toward the Baltic may force the Finnish hand. With Tallinn, capital of Estonia, rapidly coming under threat of capture, the Russians were nearing bases only a little more than 50 air miles from Helsinki.

Stalingrad Sword Presented People Of Famous City

LONDON, Feb. 3—(CP)—The Stalingrad sword, the King's gift to the people of that long-besieged city which was liberated a year ago yesterday has been handed over to a delegation of Stalingrad citizens, the Moscow radio reported in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet radio monitor. The presentation was made by Marshal Semeon M. Budyenny to D. M. Pigalev, chairman of the Stalingrad executive committee and leader of the delegation. In the King's name, the sword had been delivered by Prime Minister Winston Churchill to Premier Stalin at Teheran.

Rejection of Empire Plan By Premier King Brings Varied Reactions in Press

By ROSS MUNRO

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King's speech in the House of Commons at Ottawa Monday, rejecting suggestions for seeking a balance of power among great nations after the war and urging instead close co-operation, has produced studied comment and reflections on Commonwealth policy in influential British provincial newspapers and those in South Africa.

(The prime minister told the house Canada would not support suggestions of Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, and Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa that balance of power among the great nations be sought after the war. He said "What we must strive for is close co-operation among these great states themselves and all other like-minded countries.")

"Canada is a loyal member of the Commonwealth which has made immense sacrifices for the war but a proposal to take away her right to decide her foreign policy would produce a dangerous disunity and inflame racial feeling which it has been the triumph of British statesmanship to subdue," commented the Manchester Guardian.

PROPOSAL OFFENDS

"No wonder that Mr. Mackenzie King, her experienced prime minister, thinks the Halifax proposals inopportune. A policy of trying to iron out the varieties of the Commonwealth and form a solid body of opinion offends the fundamental instinct of the Dominions."

The Yorkshire Post said "There will be wide agreement with Mr. Mackenzie King's main thesis which is that the best way of preserving peace is not to seek a balance of strength among three or four great powers but to create an effective international system inside which co-operation of all peace-loving countries is freely sought and given."

"Any durable scheme of security must rest in the first place upon collaboration and mutual trust between the British Commonwealth, the Soviet Union and the United States. . . . But is the Canadian Prime Minister justified in assuming that behind the idea recently put forward by Lord Halifax there lurks some conception antagonistic to these basic principles of international organization?" the Yorkshire Post asked.

NOT IRRECONCILABLE

Reuter's News Agency reported from Cape Town that the Orange Free State newspaper "Friend" of Bloemfontein, said "We believe that when the issues are narrowed down and the problem of Commonwealth unity examined in the light of larger unity it will be found that no unbridgeable gulf divided Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Smuts and Lord Halifax. Dominion freedom and Commonwealth unity and world co-operation are not irreconcilable and the task of the next Empire conference will be to prove they can and will be reconciled."

The Cape Times of Cape Town doubted whether the Canadian Prime Minister was right in reading power politics into the Halifax and Smuts speeches.

"For a span of years after the destruction of Hitler, military power undoubtedly will have to be used to restore order and re-establish law," the newspaper said, adding "it will be after the aftermath that Mackenzie King's ideals will come true."

Canucks Reach India Port After Hazardous Trip

By FLT. LT. W. H. DUMSDAY
Written for The Canadian Press

A WEST COAST INDIAN PORT, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Weathering sustained air attacks en route by sea, a detachment of R.C.A.F. air crew officers and radio mechanics has arrived to take up the battle against the Axis in Southeast Asia Command.

Nine fliers, members of R.C.A.F. flying boat crews who served previously with coastal command in the United Kingdom, told, of their experiences when their convoy was subjected to two attacks by German bombers. One lasted two hours before the Nazis were driven off.

In the same convoy, however, were seven radio mechanics whose ship, in a previous convoy, was struck by an aerial torpedo but all passengers were removed at leisure and there were no casualties. An escorting destroyer took them to a port where they later joined the convoy that brought them to India.

Canadians on the torpedoed vessel, all of whom were safely in India, included LACS. George Walls, St. Vital, Man., and Bob Meston, 11136 80th Ave., Edmonton.

In the convoy which they later joined, their vessel helped materially in driving the enemy aircraft to cover.

Among fliers who made the trip was WO1 Jack Campbell, St. Albert, Alta.

Training Urged For U.K. Youths

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Sir Thomas Moore, Conservative, urged in the House of Commons yesterday that after the war all boys from the age of 17½ should serve for a period in the Home Guard so that Britain would have a defence force of something like 6,000,000 or 7,000,000.

Clement Attlee, deputy prime minister, said the suggestion would be noted but he could not say it would be approved.

In the House of Lords, Lord Croft, war under-secretary, said that after the war "the first care will be to retain the pick of tried warriors if they will remain in the services."

"We have no intention of allowing service to the country to be regarded as a mere substitute for employment which a man cannot secure elsewhere," he said. "We must have the best brains, ability and physique for the specialized work of modern services. It is generally admitted post-war services will be large."

A Digest of Addresses at the Annual General Meeting of the

CANADA PERMANENT MORTGAGE CORPORATION

A FIRM PILLAR OF SECURITY Nearly ninety years ago a small group of men determined to pool their little monthly savings so that the aggregate fund could be available to build the houses that each one by himself could not finance. That was the start of the Canada Permanent. We have continued to meet the same need on an ever-expanding scale during the intervening years. Built on a basis of thrift and integrity, the Canada Permanent today stands a firm pillar of security.

SOUND HOUSING POLICY One of the major tasks in our post-war program will be the building of new houses and the rehabilitation of the old. By far the major portion of the housing program should be done with private capital, if we are to achieve the best results. Our records are strewn with the wreckage of government housing schemes. One successful plan has been the National Housing legislation under which the Federal Government has co-operated with institutions such as ours in erecting homes that are a credit to every community concerned. That plan has an amazing record. Over $83,600,000 has been loaned under it and the losses have totalled less than $1,000.

FREE ENTERPRISE BEST It is clear that in a socialistic state the "Savings-investment" mechanism, if operated under compulsion, regimentation and political direction, would be monopolistic, more costly, less equitable, and therefore less productive than under our present free, democratic system. Centralized state control of business in the hands of a few men is a poor substitute for competition that stimulates initiative and individual energy, rewards reliability and integrity, and builds up business judgment by the hard test of actual experience and by requiring men to pit the risk of loss against the chance of gain. Home owners, farmers, depositors, debenture-holders, shareholders, small business men, buyers of Victory Bonds, are capitalists, not only through the ownership of their own property or goods, but also through the pooling of their savings in banks, insurance companies, trust and loan companies, and in the shares of industrial enterprises. It is their property that would be taken over by a socialistic state. They should actively assert themselves to guard against any such eventuality.

—From the address of the President, Mr. F. Gordon Osler.

RECORD ECONOMIC ACTIVITY Unparalleled economic activity characterized the whole of 1943. This stimulated Canada's pride in its own achievement and a general confidence that, given sound leadership, the Dominion should successfully weather post-war readjustment and carry on to a greater prosperity. The nation's productive capacity is now double what it was before the war; exports have climbed to new totals; and the national income has risen remarkably. Wages in industry reached a new peak, and people have money to spend as never before, this condition bringing with it a danger of inflation against which the Government and Country have to be constantly alert.

FARMERS REDUCING DEBTS For the first time in years, the Canadian farmer is selling his products at something like a parity with the cost of what he has to buy. Diversification of western farming caused by the war will tend to be permanent. A generation has arisen that understands how to humour the prairie into doing its best. The war has once more demonstrated the farmers' readiness to reduce their debts as rapidly as increasing revenue permits. All across the prairie, men on the land are paying off or reducing their obligations..

FARM PURCHASING POWER The better prices now available to the farmers for much of their produce are not only improving their living conditions but enabling most of them to look forward to the future with some confidence. Higher prices for farm products are, moreover, having the effect of restoring the sales values of land which were largely lost during the long years of drought and poor prices.

In my opinion, there will be a ready market for almost everything our farmers can grow or any stock they can raise during the next few years. We have had a ceiling on prices and if the suggested cellar floor for farm prices can be established, a very substantial farmer purchasing power will be maintained on a reasonably even level. This in turn will help to keep urban industry running on a balanced production.

MORTGAGE COLLECTIONS GOOD A marked improvement in the position of the western Canadian farmers and the continued high level of employment in urban centres were reflected in exceptionally good mortgage collections. Collections of principal exceeded the record for any year since 1929.

—From the address of the General Manager, Mr. Charles S. Robertson.

Referring to the progress of The Canada Permanent Trust Company during the year 1943, the President, Mr. F. Gordon Osler, said:
"It has had a very active year during which its assets increased to a greater extent than in any other year in its history except one. In the last eleven years it has more than doubled the amount of its business."

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

TO THE E.A.C. juniors that second victory must have seemed a long time overdue, but nevertheless the boys have kept on punching even although the outlook was rather bleak and reserve strength short. A great deal of credit for the recent better showing of the club is coming to Ralph Hansch, whose work in the nets has been of a very high standard.

Against the Canadians on Monday the Clubmen were in the front row until the last few minutes. Last night they skated the Sailors right into the ice during most of the opening session and held their own in the second, even if they were sorely pressed during the final minutes.

Hansch stopped 25 shots last night, 13 of them in the last period, while Bill Lancaster had 21 to handle and 12 of Bill's were in the first 20 minutes. There were four shots on the Navy net and five on the E.A.C. goal during the second chapter.

CRAGG COMING WELL

BILL INGRAM failed to come up with his usual goal on Wednesday. The E.A.C. defence ace has collected nine points in the 10 games, which makes him top scorer for the Clubmen. About the only time out he and Graham Cragg have been receiving of late is the occasional trip over to visit timer Stan Morgan in the penalty box.

Cragg has been quietly doing a nice rear-guard job for the E.A.C. entry on recent games and in the middle period last night in addition to the usual defence chores, prevented what had all the earmarkings of a pair of cinch goals. The first was when he hooked the puck from Jerry Dea as the Navy left winger was bearing down on the nets and he later broke up the Jack Ingram-Joe Slattery threat right in front of the goal.

Art Michaluk, big defenceman from Canmore with the E.A.C. juniors in '41-42 and with the Alberta champion junior football squad from "M" Depot in the fall of '42, is well on the way to realize his ambition to become a fully qualified pilot. Art graduated from the E.F.T.S. at Abbotsford, B.C. a few days ago and next goes to a service school. Michaluk played with the Mustangs in the Alberta senior hockey loop last winter.

TROPHY TO ENGINEERS

FOUR "A" section cage teams will be on show at Westglen gym tomorrow night. Latter Day Saints and Yanks will supply the first part of the usual doubleheader attraction, while U.S. Engineers and U.S. Station Hospital are second half opponents.

Not the least of the evening's highlights should be the struggle for points by the ace marksmen of the league. John Gullekson of Engineers and Hospital's Warren Taulbee, joint holders of the record high of 28 points for a single game will be on the floor at the same time.

President Clare Hollingsworth states that the Motor Car Supply trophy, awarded for the championship of the Men's Basketball League and recently returned from the engravers, will be formally presented during the evening to U.S. Engineers, last year's winners.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The greatest mass exhibition of cauliflower ears and bloodied noses ever witnessed in Africa will take place during the six days from Feb. 14 to Feb. 19, inclusive.

During that time the finalists from more than 1,000 Allied leather pushers climb through the ropes to determine the amateur and professional boxing championships of the North Africa theatre of operations.

With the 700 Americans will be 250 British and about 50 French title aspirants, including a dozen Greek and Arab boxers who are camouflaged under French colors.

Jack Sharkey, who once held the heavyweight championship, and Fedel La Barba, former flyweight king, but now a corporal in the U.S. Army, will referee the finals.

Thousands of GI's are expected to monopolize every square inch of seating space in an Algiers stadium where the bouts will be held.

Canadiens Trim Quebec All-Stars Exhibition Game

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens, leaders of the National hockey league, packed too much offensive power for an all-star Quebec Senior hockey league team here last night, emerging on the long end of a 6-2 score in an exhibition game marked by only three penalties.

Most impressive member of the Canadiens was Phil Watson, whose speed and neat stick-handling brought the fans to their feet several times. Elmer Lach was another to win a hand from the crowd. Bill Beveridge, one-time N.H.L. goalie, made his first start of the season in the all-star nets, and turned in a fine display.

Watson took a goal-mouth pass from Chamberlain to open scoring in the fifth minute of play. Shortly afterwards Getliffe circled the Ottawa net for a pass-out which Chamberlain converted for the second goal.

A penalty to Majeau for holding Seguin in the ninth minute of play failed to help the all-star cause. Getliffe scored Canadiens' third counter when Beveridge attempted to grab a rebound and the puck slid off his glove into the cage.

Smart hit for the first all-star counter on a three-way play with Desroches and Jack Carthy. Gignac's back-hander was the only score of the second period.

Canadiens started fast in the third. Lach sent Richard's pass-out through Beveridge's legs with a snap shot for one goal, and Black hit back for another on a set-up by Lach.

The teams went until the second last minute of play before winding up the scoring, a passing play featuring Chamberlain and Getliffe leaving Lamoureux with a clear shot.

No Shortage of Names for Phils

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The fans are calling the Phillies everything but gentlemen—in an effort to provide a new nickname and insignia for the club.

It all started when Bob Carpenter, Phillies president, opened a contest and offered a $100 war bond to the fan selecting the best nickname and insignia for the National leaguers.

"We never knew the drawing power a contest of this kind had," Carpenter said. "Why we have letters from every state in the Union and expect plenty from servicemen overseas before the contest ends Feb. 27."

The proposed nicknames range from "Daisies to Stinkers."

Currie Cartoons

Pte. Max Bentley —League's Leading Scorer

—Canadian Army (M.D. 13) Cartoon.

Goal-getting Max Bentley, current leader in the scoring race of the Alberta Senior Garrison Hockey Loop, saw more action with Currie Army at Victoria arena last night, when the soldiers tangled with the Navy sextet and received a 5-2 setback. Bentley, 23, centre ice star, has always been a prolific scorer. After playing with Rosetown Intermediates he moved into senior company with Drumheller Miners where he was twice the league's leading scorer in three years. From Drumheller he went to Saskatoon Quakers and won the Saskatchewan scoring title. Then he moved into the N.H.L. with Chicago Black Hawks, where he played for three seasons. Last season with Hawks was his best. Along with brother Doug, the two Bentleys all but wrapped up the N.H.L. Doug. won the scoring title, and Max finished second. In addition Max captured the Lady Byng trophy, and Doug. finished second to Boston's Bill Cowley for the Hart trophy.

Tight Race in Junior Loop

Saskatoon Dispels Doubts About Having Powerful Team

SASKATOON, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Saskatoon H.M.C.S. Unicorn, a well-balanced mixture of youth and age, Tuesday night dispelled any lingering doubts about who has the power in the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League by running their undefeated string to an even dozen games at the expense of Moose Jaw Vics. The score, 11-5, was merely incidental.

Paced by clever OS. Tony Leswick, who played for Indianapolis of the American League, OS. Bud Weaver and OS. Gerry Couture, the sailors have been burning up the league and now hold a strategic 10-point advantage over Vics and Flin Flon Bombers, tied for second.

A close race is under way in the South Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League where Regina Navy is 1½ points ahead of Regina Army Commandos. Moose Jaw Canucks, in third place, are two points back of Commandos and one-half point ahead of Notre Dame Hounds with 21½ points. Regina Abbotts are in the cellar with only one win in 13 starts.

Red Deer and Calgary Tecumseh-Mustangs, with six wins and an equal number of losses each, top the Alberta Garrison Hockey League, one game better than Currie Army. Former Chicago Black Hawk star, Max Bentley of the Army, heads the scoring parade in the loop with 23 points made up of 13 goals and 10 assists.

Canadians have a handy lead in the Edmonton Junior League with 14 points, seven more than H.M.C.S. Nonsuch and 9 better than Edmonton Athletic Club who have only two wins and a tie.

Petaske Nets Payoff Goal From Cairns

AFTER outplaying them in the early stages and then holding off the Sailors' final drive, Edmonton Athletic Club upset H.M.C.S. Nonsuch 1-0 in Wednesday night's Junior Hockey League game at 119 street rink. The Clubmen are now just two points from the second-place Navy crew.

Following a shot by Chris Cairns the puck came out from behind the goal to the waiting Pete Petaske, who beat goalie Bill Lancaster for the payoff counter after two minutes of the middle session had elapsed.

The final period had a decided Navy tinge, but Ralph Hansch in the E.A.C. nets held tight and kicked out 13 well-tagged drives in gaining a richly deserved shutout.

Coach Bill Drever's club held a wide margin over the Navy pucksters in the first minutes and got in 12 shots to the Sailors' six during the entire period. Lancaster did his biggest business in stops right after the opening whistle.

Alex, Boyko had the first real chance to score for Navy, but Hansch made a great save. Lou Sylvester missed the final pass on a dangerous three-way play with Jack Brown and Alex Senio when the Navy defence was completely beaten. Petaske shot at least three feet wide when trying to pick the corner from 10 feet out.

Bill Ingram was sent off for tripping Bus Younger with just under three minutes left and this gave Navy lads their first opportunity to turn on the heat. E.A.C. boys were back-checking well.

Jack Ingram got right through on Hansch once and the Navy defenceman was in again as the period ended.

Jim Frew passed up what looked to be a certain goal as he and Jack Ingram worked in close at the start of the second stanza.

E.A.C.'s registered what proved to be the winner at 2:05. Cairns shot from the right boards and the puck came out on the opposite side of the goal and Petaske slapped it into the net with a quick backhander.

Navy put on the pressure when Bill Ingram was benched for boarding Younger and the Sailors' offensive continued even after Bill returned.

Graham Cragg hooked the puck from Jerry Dea when the latter appeared headed for a goal. Cairns missed when Bill Ingram carried the rubber right in and passed over. Younger tried to pick a corner and was wide by a couple of inches.

Cragg made another fine save when Slattery and Jack Ingram swung in close. Bill Ingram was just finishing off a rush as the bell went.

Lancaster made the best play of the night when he blocked Brown's shot with the E.A.C. winger right on top of him as the third period opened.

Jack Ingram was chased for tripping Brown and he nearly scored when he intercepted the puck as he came back on and went right through to Hansch.

When Cairns was penalized Navy started an offensive which carried through for almost the entire period. It was only occasionally that the E.A.C. defenders got into Nonsuch territory. Petaske did get through twice, and his shots were high and Alex Trofimuk got in once, but Lancaster kicked out the puck.

Hansch saved nicely from Dea just before the final gong.

Combines Turn Back Currie To Move Into Tie for Lead

CALGARY, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Tecumseh-Mustangs put over the greatest upset in the Central Alberta Garrison League to date when they knocked over the highly-touted Currie Army club by a count of 5-2 in a thrilling hockey game played here Wednesday night.

Operating without Air Force help, the Combines were conceded little chance of turning in a victory, but by playing a stout defensive contest and outsmarting the soldiers at every turn the sailors were able to hold off Currie's haunted attack and emerge with a well-deserved win. By their triumph, the Tecumseh-Mustangs advance into a tie with Red Deer Army for league-leadership.

OS. Jimmy Anderson, playing his second game in senior company, turned in a smart goalkeeping display for Navy and proved a great stumbling block to the A-16 sextet.

OS. Doug Cairns led the Navy squad to victory with two goals and an assist, while AB. Ab McDougall, OS. Eddie Wares and AB. Roy Sawyer notched the others. OS. Sweeney Schriner picked up three assists. Currie markers went to Pte. Reg Bentley and Pte. Bobby Carse.

Williams Ousts Howard Palmer Glencoe Consols

CALGARY, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Glen Williams earned the right to represent Glencoe Club in the southern Alberta British Consols curling playdowns by scoring an overwhelming eight-end 14-1 victory over Howard Palmer this afternoon.

Playing on rather sticky and swingy ice, Williams and his third, Len Haw, played a standout game, whereas Palmer and his mates were away below form. Palmer did not touch the chalk until the seventh end to make the score 1-9 and when Williams was counting five, before playing his last rock on the eighth, Palmer decided his task was hopeless and called a halt.

For the southern Alberta playoff which started at 9 a.m. today, there was 12 district champions competing, 10 from outside the city and Don McLean, of North Hill, in addition to Williams, as city representatives.

Four American Records Accepted As World Marks

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Four United States track and field records, two of them by Fred Wolcott, have been accepted as world standards by the International Amateur Athletic Federation as represented by the organization's president, J. D. Edstrom, and Secretary Bo Ekelund, both of Sweden.

Wolcott, Rice Institute star, had his time of 13.7 seconds for the 120-yard and 110-metre high hurdles made at Philadelphia on June 19, 1941, written into the book alongside that of Forrest G. Towns, former Georgia hurdler who established the marks at Oslo in 1936.

Roy Cochrane's :52.2 for the 440-yard hurdles, set at the Drake relays on April 25, 1942, replaced the record held by another American since 1927. Cornelius Warmerdam, only man ever to clear 15 feet, improved on his own international standard with recognition of his pole vault of 15 feet, 7¾ in. at Modesto, Calif., on May 23, 1942.

Arne Andersson's breaking of Gunder Haegg's monopoly on middle distance records was officially recognized. Andersson was given credit for his 4:02.6 mile and 3:45 1500 metres. Haegg's standards were 4:04.6 and 3:45.8, respectively.

The club is only entitled to a pair of rinks in the northern playdowns.

Air Corps Beats A.O.S. For 12th Straight Victory

U.S. Army Air Corps ran their string of victories in the Inter-Service Basketball League to an even dozen Wednesday night when they defeated No. 2 A.O.S. 30-21 in the Observers' drill hall. U.S. 402nd Service Squadron won by default from the Military Police in what was scheduled as a curtain raiser.

Lowell Cornwell paced the league leaders, who have already clinched first place, with 12 points while FO. Dick Wright, with six, was again the best sharpshooter the Air Observer School club could offer.

The game was close all the way and eight points in the last quarter by Air Corps after the score sheet read 22-21 in the winners' favor supplied the margin of nine counters.

Andy Konopka's U.S. Airmen took an 8-6 lead in the first canto and increased it to 15-9 at half time to enjoy the biggest edge until the final few minutes.

The losers came back in the third session to cut the lead to 21-18 and were within one point, 22-21 early in the last frame, but were unable to overcome the powerful American team.

LINEUPS

U.S. Air Corps—Wheeler (7); Cornwell (12); Panvini (4); Burns (1); Loy (6); Bunty, Williams, Kerr. Total, 30.

Asks Dismissal Orlando's Appeal

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Kenneth Wilkins, assistant U.S. attorney, said yesterday he has petitioned the U.S. circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati to dismiss the appeal of James V. Orlando, former Detroit Red Wings hockey player, from a sentence for violating the Selective Service Act.

Wilkins contended in his motion that Orlando's counsel have failed to file the necessary papers in the appeal. Wilkins said a hearing on the motion was scheduled for Monday, Feb. 7.

Orlando, a native of Montreal, was convicted of filing with his draft board false information relating to his employment. He was sentenced last July 31 to four years in prison and fined $2,000. He has been at liberty on $2,000 bond.

The contracts went out to all players except Outfielder Stan Musial and "one or two others" who were signed in negotiations after last season.

The Browns mailed their papers last week but no replies have been received yet from any of the club's regulars.

Med-Dents Win 4-2 Over Arts-Ag Squad

IN EASILY the best game to date in the Interfac Hockey League schedule, Med-Dents eked out a 4-2 decision over the fast-improving Arts-Com-Law sextet on Varsity ice Wednesday night.

Going into the final period with the score tied at 2-2, Art Fraser netted the winner at 12 minutes, the goal being set up by Paul Drouin, who with the assistance of Harry Jones added another with just 30 seconds remaining.

Frank Quigley and Jim Taylor secured the goals for Arts-Ag, while Drouin and Jones collected the first two for the league leaders, who now hold a seven point advantage over the Egineers.

Quigley gave the losers a temporary lead at two minutes when he soloed through to beat Ken Torrence, who later put on a real show in holding off the Arts-Ag attacks.

Drouin squared the count for Med-Dents at 1-1 with the help of Miller five minutes later, but Art Taylor combined with Quigley at 14:27 to give Arts-Ag a 2-1 margin which they maintained until midway in the second period.

Harry Jones converted a pass from Art Fraser in deadlocking the score for Med-Dents at 11:15.

Drouin's second point of the game was on Fraser's winning counter in the last canto and his third came from the Med-Dents' final goal.

East Amateur Sports Promoter Becomes Y Supervisor at A-20

By LIEUT. BILL WALLACE
Public Relations Correspondent, A20, C.A.S.C., T.C. (C.A.)

RED DEER, Feb. 3.—The A20 sports department was considerably strengthened last week by the addition to the staff of Mr. John E. Sullivan, new Y.M.C.A. War Services Senior Supervisor.

Hailing from St. Thomas, Ont., "Sully," as he is popularly known, saw service with the R.C.A.S.C. in the last war, was for several years a prominent amateur sports promoter in Ontario, and was president of the St. Thomas and District Hockey League. He specialized in juvenile sports, and many youthful Ontario hockey and baseball players came under his tutelage.

This is "Sully's" first visit to the West, and he is extremely impressed with the brand of hockey being served in the Garrison League; he was also agreeably surprised to see so many familiar N.H.L. figures skating on to the ice in the last Currie-Wheelers tilt. Mr. Sullivan has been with the "Y" War Services for the past three years, coming to Red Deer from Toronto.

Sergeant Mac Colville was invited the other day to play in an exhibition game on a team of hockey headliners representing the Canadian armed forces versus an all star assembly from the U.S. Services; the tilt was billed for New York, and was to aid the U.S. bond drive. The fact that the project had to be cancelled due to insurmountable difficulties on both sides of the line in no way detracts from the value of the tribute paid to the Wheelers' mentor and defence keystone.

In the Officers vs. Sergeants hockey fixture on the training centre rink last week, the "anti-packing" law was temporarily lifted to permit the N.C.O.'s to use Riley Mullen on their line-up. There was a string to the concession, however, as the doughty defenceman had to preside between the sticks, but he rendered the same sterling service there as on any of his sparkling appearances with the Wheelers, and the bitterly contested struggle ended in a 4-4 deadlock. Mac Colville, too, appeared in a new role on this occasion, doing an effective job of whistle handling.

Gardiner to Join Boston Club Soon

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Bert Gardiner, Boston Bruins' goalie injured last week when the National Hockey League team played Hershey Bears of the American League in a war-bond drive exhibition game, left for Boston last night but might not be able to play Saturday night when the Bruins meet New York Rangers.

Gardiner said he feels well but there may be danger of further bleeding from internal injuries.

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—(CP)—They say sailors can't resist a fight and about 250 tars in a crowd of 800 at a Windsor hockey league game did their best to prove it. Colonial Tool was well on its way to a 10-2 sudden-death, semi-final win over Navy when a free-for-all began between players of both teams. In a jiffy sailors were swarming over the boards in all directions to get into the scrap. The players gave one frightened glance at the intruders and immediately took it upon themselves to restore order.

The Calgary Buffaloes have rejected a suggestion they move into senior hockey this year to compete for the Allan Cup and again will seek the western intermediate title they won last season. . . . A number of former professionals now in Edmonton are seeking C.A.H.A. permission to represent Alberta in the cup playoffs. They include Earl Robertson, Leroy Goldsworthy, Louis Holmes, Emil Hanson, Emory Hanson and Paul Runge.

The Athletic Patriotic Association in Winnipeg has raised and spent more than $13,000 for athletic equipment for the armed forces and handling of the organization over a five-year period has cost only $111 . . . Lester Patrick is quoted as saying Madison Square Garden has made more money from hockey in the last two seasons with only the Rangers than it did when Americans also were playing home games in the Garden. Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning says former professionals now in Winnipeg who have played against both Bill Cowley and Edgar Laprade claim Edgar is the more dangerous scoring threat.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Russia is ready to use the medium of athletics to promote good-will and understanding among the nations of the world after the war and it is highly probable that the dark horse team in the next Olympic Games will be the "Reds", Bill Downs, Moscow correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, suggested today.

The Russians, he said, are in the midst of the greatest sports boom in the history of their nation because of the war and their intensive physical fitness program. Russia never previously entered a team in the Olympics because there was no organized program of athletic training, but it should be a strong contender in future competition among nations, according to Downs.

Since they are pitted against men with no handicap allowance, the Russian women should be particularly sensational in international competition, he said, emphasizing that in track and field events, the women usually are only a shade less efficient than the men.

RACES POPULAR

IT has been necessary, he said, to subordinate team sports in favor of individual competition and the most popular are running races, boxing, cross country hiking, and skiing.

The Russians have a "Red hope" named Nikolai Krylov, a heavyweight fighter built along the lines of Jack Dempsey, whom they believe will be a strong contender for the world title in the post-war era.

There have been reports that he will seek the European title and if he attains it may try for a match with the top American fighter, but Downs believes that he is too slow in his footwork, though he is a terrific puncher.

RUGBY COMPETITION

TOPS in popularity among team sports is rugby and competition among Soviet army teams is intense. There is enthusiasm over a proposed trip to England and the United States by one of the top teams which may even be made before the war is over. Rugby players perform on bomb-pocked fields and the grandstands have large sections which have been shattered by Nazi air raids.

As evidence of the feeling in Russia that the tide of war has turned, horse racing was resumed last fall for the first time since the beginning of the war.

The races generally are of the trotting variety and the betting is as heavy as at American tracks though the odds do not change after they are posted in the morning. Thousands of Muscovites turned out to the races at the Hippodrome track and there were a number of Russo-American bred horses in the competition.

They—and probably 25 other pros and 80 amateurs — will match strokes in the 72-hole competition starting Friday.

To Play 7 Draws In 20-Hour Shift Of Sask. 'Spiel

REGINA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Some sort of record was expected to be set up here today in Canadian curling circles when the southern Saskatchewan bonspiel will run off seven draws in a 20-hour shift.

With a near-record entry of 162 rinks and only 18 sheets of ice to operate on, the curlers will go out on the ice at 7:30 a.m. and toss and sweep until after 3 a.m. the following morning.

Yesterday, the draws lagged to such an extent no rink had played more than three games.

It was a bad day for entries from outside the province and from Saskatoon.

Two Manitoba rinks, J. Gray of Kenville, and H. Doig, of Birtle, dropped their second straight games. Gray lost 14-13 to W. Jahnke of Milestone, while Doig dropped a 10-9 count to Don Pells of Regina Callies.

Rex Scott of Saskatoon dropped his second straight to E. Fallis of Elbow, 7-6. Dan Lambert, lone United States entry from Minot, N.D., lost an early morning game 8-7.

Sports .... Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Baseball's biggest post-war problem, according to National League President Ford Frick, may be "making up for our sins now." . . . Frick didn't elaborate on the "sins" but he had been talking about schedule difficulties caused by extra night games, synthetic doubleheaders, etc., so you can get an idea. . . . Capt. Hank Greenberg, now a student at the army's school for special services at Washington and Lee University, says: "I've been in the army three years now and I don't know anything about baseball." . . . He'd still have a hard time convincing the Briggs Stadium bleacherites.

Just for the records:

Wonder if any one-coach high school can beat this? . . . In 21 years that Wallace Bailey (West Point) has been coaching at Russellville, Ark., high school, his teams have compiled this record: Football—won 150, lost 49, tied 15; track, won 81, lost 24; basketball, won 292, lost 101; golf, won 15, lost 5. . . . The school, with 250 students, meets such teams as Little Rock, Fort Smith and Hot Springs every year. . . . P.S.: Bailey also is senior high school principal.

One-minute sports page:

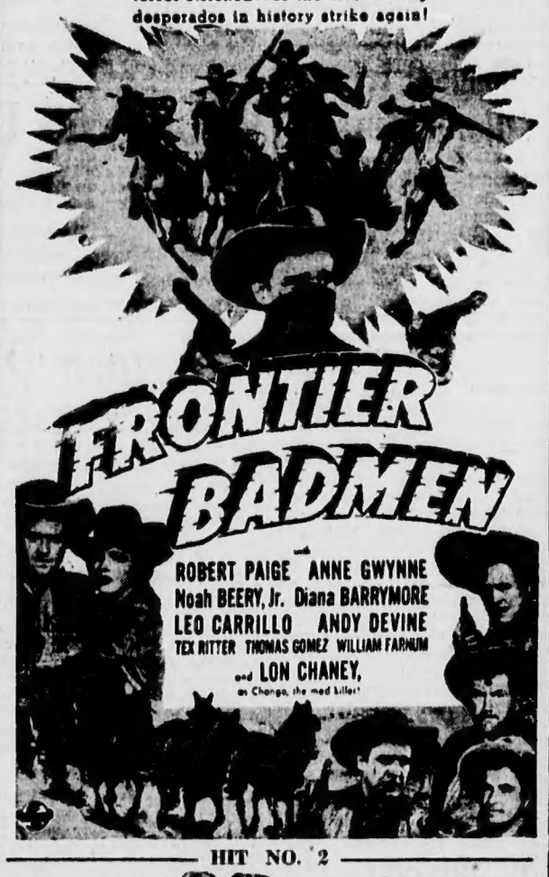

Red Ormsby, the retired American League umpire, also has retired as a member of Chicago's county highway police force. When a retrenchment order reduced him from sergeant to patrolman, Red thought of his 12 kids and went looking for a more lucrative job. . . . Leo Diegel's idea of having golf raise dough to build golf courses at veterans' hospitals, seems to be going over. One is being built at Valley Force, Pa.—Diegel ran an exhibition at the Torresdale club to provide $10,000 for that—and the second will be built near Cleveland. . . . Jose Basora, who isn't the world's best boxer, has the distinction of being the only fighter who eats all his meals at a night club. . . . One of his managers owns the joint.

Wetaskiwin Farmer Builds Sturdy Snowplow

"The Elevating Snowplow", shown above, is a plow built by D. E. Humbke, a farmer living 15 miles south-east of Wetaskiwin, which, put to a real test in last year's huge drifts, proved itself adequate to any job of snow removal. The picture at the top shows the plow with the grader blade attached to the front, and the elevator by which snow may be completely thrown off the highway. The lower picture shows the plow in operation and moving at a speed of about six miles an hour. The pictures were taken by Mr. Humbke's son-in-law, Cpl. J. Trout, now in Italy, while he was home on leave last winter. In the lower picture the footprints of Cpl. Trout can be seen in the snow where he ran ahead to take the picture.

Wetaskiwin District Farmer Builds Efficient Snow Plow

By MOLLY DEPROSE

With 42 years' experience of Western Canada's snow problems behind him, D. E. Humbke, a farmer living 15 miles south-east of Wetaskiwin, has built and patented a snow plow which will take even the mountainous drifts of last winter in its stride and look for more. He calls it "The Elevating Snowplow."

Mr. Humbke, who put the plow into operation for the first time last winter had been toying with the idea for four or five years.

With more snow than has been seen in Western Canada for many years, the winter of 1942-43 offered him an excellent opportunity to try it out and he found himself completely satisfied with its performances.

The principal features of the snow plow is that it has a grader blade which goes under the snow along the ground. A verticle knife in front of the plow cuts the crust of the snow thus loosening it and making it easy to handle, while an elevator attached to the plow throws the loosened snow completely off the highway.

For his first trial Mr. Humbke used only one knife in the front but said that more can be attached if a higher speed is desired. The machine now in operation travels at a rate of six miles an hour. The elevator can be built at any angle for the users' convenience.

Another feature is that it uses a minimum of power. Other snow plows in use require 75 per cent of their power to push the snow to one side while his own plow with its elevator avoids this unnecessary waste.

WITH TRUCK

The plow can be used with a truck, an ordinary tractor or a caterpillar tractor, says Mr. Humbke.

His plow, Mr. Humbke believes, would be particularly handy for highways and airports. When used at airports the snow could be piled, or elevated into trucks and then hauled away with a minimum of labor.

The plow he has completed could have been finished several years ago, Mr. Humbke says. He had started work on it but had neglected to complete it. However with last year's abnormal fall of snow he decided that then was the time to put "The Elevating Snowplow" to a real test.

Leighton McCarthy, and Mrs. McCarthy yesterday held their first reception since the old legation building at 1746 Massachusetts Avenue was raised to the status of an embassy. Troops Face "Dry" Season

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Feb. 3.—(CP)—"How Dry I Am" may become the favorite tune of Empire soldiers in the central Mediterranean long before summer's heat begins to parch throats.

Because of the lack of shipping space the issue of beer for soldiers is being cut from one bottle weekly to one bottle monthly, it has been learned. And officers, now entitled to draw one bottle of beer weekly and a thrid of a bottle of Scotch monthly, will get nothing.

It is understood these instructions have been issued to the expeditionary force institute, which handles the rationing of spirits, cigarettes, matches and chocolate bars.

Six Billion National Income 'Realizable'

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, assistant to the deputy minister of finance and professor of economics at Queen's University, said yesterday in an interview that a national income of between $6,000,000,000 and $6,500,000,000 is "a definitely realizable objective" for Canada after the war.

With such an income the Dominion government could draw off between $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 in taxes, providing adequately for the load of the war debt and an extensive social security and veterans' rehabilitation program, Dr. Mackintosh told a local reporter.

Canada's economic position would depend to a large extent on the restoration and expansion of world trade. Some constitutional readjustment between the Dominion and the provinces, giving the Dominion "more financial elbow-room," would also be necessary, he said.

Plans Interviews With Dominion Officials At Inter-Provincial Parley

Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, will confer with Dominion government officials in Ottawa regarding future uses for Government House, which has been vacant since Dec. 31, it was learned here Thursday.

Mr. Fallow is going to Ottawa at the middle of this month, as a member of a committee of provincial public works ministers which is headed by Hon. E. Willis, of the Manitoba cabinet.

The group is to confer with the Dominion government regarding the need of grants-in-aid for roads, and post-war public works plans.

In view of the fact that all provincial legislatures shortly will be in session, the committee will attempt to find out what the Dominmion public works program is to be, in order that provincial schedules for work may be fixed for the coming year.

While in the Dominion capital, Mr. Fallow will confer with the department of national defence regarding Alberta's proposal to use Government House as a convalescent home for soldiers.

The provincial government recently put this suggestion before the Dominion department of pensions and national health, and it was referred to the defence department.

Col. G. Goodwin-Gibson, real estate advisor to the department of national defence, has communicated with Mr. Fallow, and suggested a conference in Ottawa, and it is expected that the whole proposal will be discussed at that time.

It has been pointed out in Edmonton that alterations to Government House to make it suitable for a convalescent home would cost in the neighborhood of $30,000, and would take three or four months to complete.

WORK IS STARTED

On the other hand, the Dominion government has already started construction of a $450,000 extension to the military hospital, near the University hospital.

Government House was occupied by Northwest Airlines Inc. up to the end of last year, and drew a monthly rental of $2,000. The Canadian Legion, Edmonton branch, has urged its use as a convalescent home.

THE QUESTION

Hundreds of names have been affixed to petitions seeking executive clemency for John Hipfner who was arrested last Friday on an extradition warrant. Do you think this clemency should be granted?

THE ANSWERS

A. W. McLEAN, clerk: If this man has gone "straight" and made a good citizen for the last 12 years I think he should be allowed to stay here. He has proved in that length of time that he is not a criminal.

• • •

MRS. WILLIAM BATES, housewife: It looks to me as if this man has lived a good enough life and paid his debt to society for a foolish thing he did as a youth. I see no reason why his home should be broken up now.

ROBERT ROSS, caretaker: I think this man did get a very stiff sentence for the small crime he committed but I think he should go back and appeal his case.

January Sets New High Mark For Sunshine

The month of January this year set a record for sunshine, as there were more hours of sunshine than in any January for the last 25 years, according to a report issued Thursday by the airport meteorological bureau.

Although the last month was not the warmest January on record, there were 140 hours of bright sunshine. January, 1931, with more than 109 hours, was bright and sunny, as was January, 1942, with 107 hours, and the same month in 1927 with 106 hours.

The warmest temperature reached during the last month was 50.2 degrees, and the highest January temperature recorded in this city since 1894 was 55 degrees in 1931. The average temperature during January was 16.9, which was well over the normal average temperature of seven above.

Coldest January weather was recorded in 1916, when the average temperature was 12 below zero. The warmest January in the weather records was in 1931, with an average of 22 degrees above zero.

Wind throughout the month was reported as normal, the average velocity being 7.3 miles an hour. Last year was the windiest January for the last six years. A 40-mile-an-hour gale blew through the city for some time.

LITTLE RAIN

There was only a trace of rain during the month compared with the highest January rainfall ever recorded, which was 2.50 inches in 1935. The average January rainfall was .04 of an inch.

Snowfall was four inches for the month, which is far short of the normal Jannary snowfall of 8.3 inches. Greatest snowfall recorded was in 1935 with 25 inches, and the least was in 1931, when only a trace was recorded.

Independents' Leader Passes Through City

By STANLEY WILLIAMS

James Walker, M.L.A., for Warner constituency and newly-elected head of the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta, passed through Edmonton Wednesday on his way to Spirit River and Grande Prairie, where Independent party meetings were to be held Thursday.

At Grande Prairie, a nominating convention for that constituency was scheduled, with Mr. Walker as the main speaker. Dr. L. J. O'Brien of Grande Prairie, an Independent, now represents Grande Prairie in the Legislature.

The Spirit River meeting, which was expected to be in the form of a rally, was scheduled for Thursday night. Mr. Walker hinted there was a slight chance this rally would nominate a candidate for Spirit River constituency, provided arrangements could be made in the limited time available. H. E. DeBolt of Spirit River, of the Social Credit party, now represents the constituency in the house.

Asked for his opinion of the prospects of a provincial general election in Alberta this year, Mr. Walker parried with, "You know more about that than I do. I haven't the slightest idea."

With reference to the nomination of Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer and minister of education, in Mr. Walker's constituency of Warner, the Independent head said, "We welcome him back—and we hope to give him a very good run for the seat."

"Mr. Low gave me a trimming in 1935," Mr. Walker recalled. "We nosed him out in 1940. The next election will see who is 'best out of three,' and should be a close race."

(Mr. Low, after being defeated in Warner in 1940, was elected by acclamation from Vegreville constituency.)

The Independent leader is not particularly concerned about the C.C.F. party. "I haven't given them much thought," he said. "I do not think they are very strong in my constituency at all. There will always be a socialist following, though, without any doubt."

Although he didn't say so in as many words, Mr. Walker believes the next provincial election will be a contest between the Social Credit party and the Independent group. He said, "I see no reason why we shouldn't be strong in competition for the next government" which would indicate he feels the C.C.F.'s efforts in a province-wide poll may be of little import.

The Independents hope to organize from one end of the province to the other, "and that's one reason we are out today," Mr. Walker declared. "We have contact men everywhere in the province, although the local organizations are not yet set up."

He does not think seats held by men in the services should be contested in the event of an election being called. "In my opinion, enlisted men in the services and overseas should be returned without opposition, no matter what party they belong to," said Mr. Walker.

He said the 'ndependents' group of M.L.A.'s would caucus in Edmonton on Feb. 9, the day before the house opens. Matters of party interest will be discussed and a party whip chosen, and it was indicated the party may hold close-in meetings, during the session, to step up nearby Independent organizations.

Policeman and Young Friend

Tommy Dickinson, three years old, of 11018 127 street, and Constable C. E. Tyler, who found him at 100A street and 100A avenue, Tuesday afternoon, as they posed for the police photographer at police headquarters.

Three-Year-Old Boy Finds Police Are True Friends

By GRAHAM BARKER

Meet tiny Tommy Dickinson, positively the youngest man in the country to be photographed by the police.

Tommy is three years old, and lives with his mother at 11018 127 street—when he's home.

Tommy went shopping with his mother on Tuesday afternoon, but the two got separated in one of the large departmental stores.

Tommy found his way outside and then into the traffic. More than once he was saved from personal injury by alert motorists.

He was observed by two women as he went on his way, and they became his guardians until Constable C. E. Tyler came in response to a call, to take charge of the by-now tearful late-shopper.

But Tommy hadn't met a policeman before; his tears stopped and he followed along, happily, toward the police station. On the way, a chocolate bar was purchased for him. At police headquarters, a kind man with a bag of maple buds allowed him to help himself. Tommy did so, between opening doors and conducting other investigations.

He made friends with the janitor, the switchboard operator, the desk sergeant—and even went so far as the cell-block, before he was asked if he would like to have his picture taken.

Constable Ronald E. Hooper, police photographer, snapped him with "my good friend, Constable Tyler." And when mother came on the scene, later, her son demanded she have her picture taken too!

SOME PREPARATIONS

Some preparations were necessary before the photograph here could be taken. There was, for instance, the removal from face, eyebrows and hair, of a generous supply of sweet chocolate!

You can't tell Tommy the police hurt little boys. He knows better. Ask him, and see!

Bremner District Farmer Gets Visit from Dayton, Ohio, Balloon

Sends Information in Hurry

Lloyd McGhan, a farmer in the Bremner district was highly mystified Monday evening when a strange object fell out of the skies and landed in his barnyard.

He was walking from his barn to his house about 9 p.m. when he heard a sudden thud behind him. Investigation showed a small red parachute measuring about six feet across, with two balloons attached to the underside. Another balloon containing ballast of sand and a sealed box also were attached to the parachute. Upon opening the box he found a small instrument and explicit instruction to the finder to mail the box back to the Signal Officer at Dayton, Ohio air base. Instructions also asked the finder to name the date and locality the object was found in and issued a warning of a $300 fine for failure to comply with the instructions.

Although the balloon's journey to Alberta from Ohio was obviously some type of experiment Mr. McGhan is still highly curious as to the nature of the experiment.

P.S.—He mailed the box very promptly.

McKenney On Bridge

Fourth of a series of six articles selecting the outstanding hands published in this column during 1943.

Even though you read this hand when it appeared July 23, 1943, look at it again and see if you can figure out how the declarer can make nine tricks. He has one spade, two hearts and a club. He can make four diamond tricks—but that gives him only eight. His problem is to make five diamond tricks. The ten and nine of diamonds have that suit blocked.

Here is the way the hand was made. The second spade trick was won with the ace, the king and queen of diamonds were cashed, and the ten of spades led. West quite naturally ran the balance of his spade tricks—and South discarded the nine of diamonds. After cashing his spades, West had to let South in. Now South overtook the ten of diamonds with the ace and cashed the other two diamonds in dummy, thus making nine tricks.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Many a child continues to wet the bed long after he has achieved daytime control. A minority of such cases may be due to physical conditions and the first step a parent should take is to have an examination of the urine.

Oftener than a parent suspects the habit is merely a result of a combination of factors for some of which the parent may be to blame.

Children continue to bed-wet because the habit has become such a "sore" point between them and the parents. They can be victorious over them no matter how often punished, scolded or humiliated. Being victorious may be the satisfaction the child craves. His parent should find other ways in which he or she can feel himself independent.

Parents unconsciously may deprive the child of confidence in his ability to be controlled. "He can't help it, poor thing. He sleeps so soundly." That's a poor preparation for control. Instead ,tell the child that even if he is asleep if he will advise his "subconscious" to stay on the job and wake him up when he needs to go to the toilet, it will stay awake and work for him. Just as if it were an alarm clock he will waken when the need is there.

There should be constant encouragement even in the face of apparent failure. "You were dry two nights this week. Now, if you can do that you can stay dry three nights and then four. Just keep trying.

All such methods work IF the child is old enough for control. As this age differs greatly in children, bed-wetting should not be considered a bad habit until the child is 3 or over. Before that any child may have lapses into incontinence.

Give the greatest load of fluid foods in the forenoon and early afternoon and give a milk pudding at night rather than milk to drink and only a few swallows of water at bedtime. Salt the evening meal more heavily or supply a salty sandwich of bread and ham (salty ham or bacon or salty fish, with no water afterwards, just when the child goes to bed.

The salt helps the tissues to retain the fluid and control becomes easier. Once the habit has been made easy the child gains not only in physical control but in confidence. Then the battle is won.

You may have our leaflet, "Bedwetting," which enumerates the usual reasons for this habit, by sending your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper, together with a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gideon Planish

XXVII

THE Doctor's farewell to his recent boss, the Hon. Mr. Ernest Wheyfish, was unexpected. He had pictured Soapy Ernest denouncing him as a traitor and sneak, but Ernest only caroled, "Going to be associated with Marduc, eh? I envy you. Now, Gid, you mustn't forget the happy times we've had here together, shoulder to shoulder to put over the principle of Christian giving, just like a joyful oldtime prayer meeting, and let's see if we can't go on working together. Fix me up a lunch with old Marduc. God bless you, my boy. I never did find a fellow that I liked to work with better, and I hope your contributions will come rolling in like salmon in spring."

There was, at first, no need of general contributions. Colonel Marduc supported the preliminary survey, as it was technically called, and if he did not seem displeased by mysterious newspaper items mentioning him as a possible President, he never demanded them.

For months Dr. Planish held conferences with the leading thinkers and humanitarians and read their typed memos, which he called "highly suggestive," even if each one did contradict all the others.

Sherry Belden, whom Colonel Marduc had detached from a fine job as an account executive to assist Dr. Planish, took for him, at first, a three-room suite in a hotel, with a small but distintcive bar in a closet. Here he worked with Sherry, Colonel Marduc, Winnifred, Major Homeward, Natalia Hochberg, Senator Bultitude, Governor Blizzard, Bishop Pindyck, Rabbi Lichtenselig, Ramona Tundra, the actress, and, naturally, the Reverend Dr. Christian Stern.

Between conferences, the Planishes proudly became intimates of Winifred Homeward and her little boy, the Major. Winifred lost so many friends, talked them to death so quickly or just forgot them into oblivion, that it was not hard for newcomers to step in and be friends—while it lasted.

Peony was a competent listener, and Winifred permitted her to come often to the red-brick Georgian chateau of the Homewards on East 68th street, where Peony's position presently came to resemble that of a highly paid companion and maid—except that she did not get the pay. For a while, she was perhaps Winifred's only woman friend—Winifred complained that most women friends were selfish and jealous and were always interrupting her.

Peony was rapidly promoted, in this romantic chronicle of modern court life, from milkmaid to lady in waiting. She confided to the Doctor that she was at last enjoying to the full the social and intellectual advantages of New York and, without paying one cent (except for taxi fare), she could always get a cup of tea (not very hot) at Winifred's.

Dr. Planish saw the great lady informally, too. Once, after a tense conference on the wickedness of dictators, Winifred said gaily to him, "Oh, let's go out and have a sandwich at a cafeteria. I love cafeterias! So jolly!"

In that vast white-tiled room shrieking with light, they took their trays and edged along the counter, inspecting cakes with marble icing, cakes crumbed with sugar, ingenious cakes like sections of a tree.

"Isn't it amusing!" Winifred screamed, so that a policeman on the corner outside nervously grasped his club. "I love an adventure! And don't you hate these people who come into a dump like this as though they were slumming? The whole pleasure of it is to feel that you're not really any better than the Common People."

Winifred set down her tray and looked at the tables about her. She sighed, "I must say, though, it worries me to think of loafers and lower-bracketeers like these actually having a vote, and deciding major issues. I keep trying to think of some way of combining absolute democracy—in which, of course, my father and I believe implicitly—with keeping the decision in really important affairs in the hands of experts—like ourselves. I think I'll make that my next editorial in Attention!"

Pretty much everything was decided about the new organization except its name, and for what purpose it existed, if any.

Winifred Homeward proposed that there should be a Federal police force—with her husband as chief. Governor Blizzard proposed that a job be found for his cousin, Al Jones, a fine young fellow. But, as the godlike eye of Colonel Marduc perceived, eventually it was Dr. Planish who settled on the purposes and title for their new organization.

The title was "Dynamos of Democratic Direction," though it was always known as the DDD. Winifred was to be the first president; Sherry Belden, treasurer; and the "directive secretary" was Gideon Planish, M.A., Ph.D.

The DDD was to have a chapter, called a "powerhouse," in every community in America. Each of these was, under instruction from New York about the latest Conditions and Situations, to organize a Discussion Group, a Health Committee, a Gardening Unit, a History Class, an English Class for the Foreign-born, an Investigation Group to report on local Fascists, and a committee to wangle free radio time. There was, of course, to be a national magazine, but it never did get started. The whole scheme, in fact—to supplant the Federal and State and Town Governments and the entire Christian Church by a new Soviet headed by Colonel Marduc—was beyond criticism, even carping criticism. Dr. Planish summed it up in a private memo to the Colonel: "All ordinary citizens, especially those west of Buffalo, need instruction and direction in becoming thoroughly democratic from trained thinkers like ourselves. When we have given our democracy to the entire nation, then America will enforce it on the rest of the world. That is our basic idea."

The basic ideas behind this basic idea were that Dr. Planish was to have a secure $100-a-week job, which would some day become a $200-a-week job, and Tom Blizzard and old Charley Marduc were to enjoy being known as great statesmen, and Charley's horsy-looking girl, Winfred, was to have an audience whenever she got hungry for one, and Peony and the United States of America were to enjoy one unending Christmas morning.

In the haven of the Dynamos of Democratic Direction, Dr. Planish passed three serene years, from late in 1938 until December, 1941, while the rest of the world was not so serene.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Children Cheer Home And Bring Happiness

Middle-Aged Mother With Own Children Grown and Away From Home, Offers Blessings to Motherless Little Ones

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a country woman, only middle-aged, well and strong. I have two fine children who are married and gone and our house is lonesome and empty. My husband and I long to hear the sound of little feet upon the floors and to hear childish voices babbling around us. Therefore, we are anxious to take two babies to rear, but our children are violently opposed to it, and say: "Mother, you have reared your own children. Let that be enough. Don't burden yourself with a baby now in your old age."

Yet I want a child and I feel I am more fitted to rear one now than I was when I was younger. I have learned so much by bringing up my own. Do you think we would be foolish to take children?

MRS. A. B. C.

Answer: Indeed I don't, Mrs. A. B. C. I think it would be the wisest thing you could possibly do and the one thing that would bring more cheer and brightness into your own and your husband's life than anything else.

And, oh, what a blessed thing it would be for the poor, little, homeless, motherless babies you would take from the cold comfort of an orphan asylum into the shelter of your warm human home! Of course, your children are trying to save you work and care and responsibility, and nobody will deny that bringing up a baby has plenty of all of these in it, and that it ties you down to your job as nothing else does. But what your children forget is that it is the kind of work that is fun and that you like to do.

The trouble with middle-aged and elderly people is the lack of interests in life. They haven't enough to do or enough to think about, or anything to plan for and look forward to. It is absolutely necessary for our happiness and well-being for us to have some incentive, some absorbing occupation, and it is the lack of this that kills people.

Notice the men who retire from business. They break under idleness far quicker than they would have done at work. Having nothing to do but to think about themselves, they get cranky and neurotic and ill with diseases that are half imaginary, and soon they die. It is the men who keep on with their jobs and have a vital interest who keep young and hale and hearty up into the eighties. And it is the same way with women.

A woman's job is rearing her family, and when that is accomplished and her children have gone about the business of life and left her, and she has nobody to work for or plan for any more, she often turns from being a cheerful, helpful, amiable woman into being a peevish, fretful, fault-finding one, who is hard to live with. And it is all because she has nothing to do and nobody to think about but herself.

So I think that if you will take these children you will save yourself from this dreary fate. You will provide yourself with a never-failing source of interest. You will have plenty to do to keep you busy, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are doing one of the finest and noblest things in the world.

For no woman can set her hand to a more God-given piece of work than mothering little motherless children, and giving them a chance to make something of themselves in a world that is hard and cruel to orphans. And you will have something that every woman in the world wants, something little and cuddly to love and caress, something to pet and make a fuss over. And, believe me, a baby is a million times better pet than a Pomeranian pup.

So tell your children that in taking these babies to rear you are not taking a burden on yourself, but are giving yourself an indulgence.

WANTS OUTING

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married four years to the dearest man in the world. We have a little baby girl, and she is a darling. But here is where the trouble comes in. I like to go to a movie once in a while as I never go out or have any company, for we are strangers here. I get so lonely and discouraged that I have lost all interest in life and I get cross and nervous with my baby and my husband, although I worship them both.

Now I have started to go one night each week to the movies alone and my husband keeps the baby. He is glad for me to do this, but he refuses to take his night out, as he says that he prefers to stay at home with me. This makes me feel so selfish. Please tell me what you think?

RUTH T.

Answer: Why I think, Ruth, that it is your bounden duty to go out and get a little relaxation and change and let your taut nerves relax, and to get something new and fresh and pleasant to think about as you go about your daily duties. You owe that much to your good husband and your baby, because a woman who is so nervous that she is irritable and cross is a very unpleasant person to have to live with.

If women would spend more time in amusing themselves, it would be a good thing for everybody concerned, because it would make them interesting and cheerful around the house, and that is what husbands and children want. They don't want these martyr-to-duty wives and mothers who are whiney and fretful and complaining and who haven't a laugh in their whole systems.

Because your husband wants to stay at home of an evening is no reason why you shouldn't go out. You and he approach the situation from different standpoints. He has spent his day away from home, seeing other people, talking with other people, having variety every minute, and it is a change and rest to him to put on his smoking jacket and his house slippers and spend his evening drowsing by the fireside.

But you have been shut up in the house all day, seeing no one, talking with no one, with nothing to distract your thought from yourself, and it is a change for you and it rests you to put on your prettiest frock and step out where there are people and lights and music and something to amuse you and give you a fresh outlook.

It would be the salvation of many a household if the husband would stay at home with the baby once a week and let the wife go out and enjoy herself.

Ebdon-Young Wedding Held

Yellow daffodils and sprays of mixed spring flowers banked the altar of Holy Trinity church on Wednesday evening, for the marriage of Miss Ruth Isabel (Fay) Young, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Young, to Writer E. C. (Ned) Ebdon, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mrs. E. Ebdon, all of Edmonton. The Rev. Winston M. Nainby performed the ceremony.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, was gowned in a floor-length white sheer frock fashioned with a full skirt, gathered at the waistline to a wide girdle embroidered in white, the girdle ending in a point at the back. A row of tiny buttons down the front of the bodice and a high neckline with a Peter Pan collar completed the ensemble. She wore a finger tip length veil caught to a halo of red roses and carried a bouquet of baby 'mums and red roses. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace and earrings, gifts of the bridegroom.

Miss Doreen Browse was the bride's only attendant. She chose a pale yellow sheer gown, with a full skirt gathered at the waistline and a deep bodice fastened with a row of tiny buttons ending in a frill at the bottom. A high neckline and long sleeves were other features of the ensemble. She wore a matching Dutch cap, and carried a spring bouquet of daffodils, tulips and pink carnations.

Douglas Young, brother of the bride, was best man, and Arthur Hook and Sidney Cotter ushered the guests to their pews which were marked with tiny white bows.

Bernard Young, uncle of the bride, played the wedding marches, and Miss Margaret Cidney sang "O Perfect Love."

RECEPTION HELD

Following the ceremony a reception to over 50 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents.

To receive her guests Mrs. Young chose a two-piece navy blue wool crepe frock fastened down the front with tiny pearl buttons. She wore a pearl necklace, a red velvet hat, and black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Receiving with Mrs. Young, Mrs. Ebdon, mother of the bridegroom, wore a black gorgette crepe dress trimmed with gold sequins. Her hat was black with gold trim. She wore a corsage of red carnations.

The bride's table was set with an ecru hand embroidered cloth.

WEDDING CAKE

It was centred with a tiered wedding cake, the tiers being supported with tiny pillars. A silver vase of daffodils on either side of the cake completed the table decorations. Mrs. E. W. Dean and Mrs. V. R. Runnals presided at the tea urns.

Assisting in serving were Miss Margaret Climie, Miss Jean Climie, Miss Mabel Cidney, Miss Phyllis Cowlie, and Miss Jean Cowlie.

The bridal couple left later on a wedding trip to the Pacific coast. For travelling Mrs. Ebdon changed to a two-piece wool dress of teal blue, black fur coat and black accessories.

Seldom See Their Father

By FRANK HINDS

WINNIPEG, Feb. 3.—(CP)—The Simonds youngsters find it difficult to distinguish between their dad, Maj. Gen. Guy Simonds, commander of a Canadian division overseas, and Sir Bernard Montgomery, the famous British general, when either of the two military leaders appears on the newsreel screen.

Ruth, 10, and Charles, nine, have seen their father only during one 10-day visit in August, 1942, since they have been old enough to remember what he looks like, so that the confusion is only natural. They pipe "there's daddy" when either of the two military leaders appears on the screen.

Mrs. Simonds, the former Katherine Taylor of Winnipeg, has no post-war plans but, like every soldier's wife, she would like to "settle down and be normal [illegible] have some proper home life a[illegible]

Not a career woman [illegible] her own statement, Mrs. Simonds is nevertheless taking a prominent part in the activities of various service organizations. She is the official upholsterer for the Winnipeg Salvage Corps and does hospital mending for the officers' wives' auxiliary.

LETTERS MEAN A LOT

Two or three times a week she takes time off from these activities and the full-time job of raising her two children to write to the general who is just as anxious to get mail as any private under his command. Like lots of privates, too, he is not so good at answering his mail and Mrs. Simonds considers herself lucky if she hears from her busy husband once a month.

Mrs. Simonds wears a pretty gold and red enamel pin, a recent gift from the general, on the front of her tailored dresses these days. The pin, complete with gold maple leaf, is a miniature replica of the famous Red Patch which distinguishes the Canadian 1st Division in the Mediterranean theatre, formerly commanded by her husband.

The general's wife does her daily shopping on the bicycle which has followed her on her tours from one to the other of the 17 different houses she has lived in since her marriage to young Lieut. Simonds. Some of these houses were in England where she spent three years before the war while her husband was training for the role he is playing today.

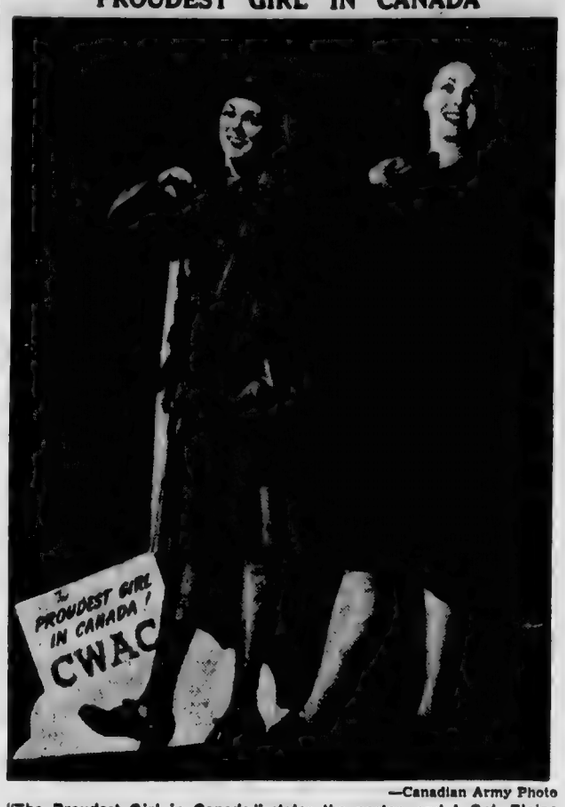

Shopping is somewhat simplified since the head of the family has been away. A picky eater, the general just won't eat his vegetables and young Charles tries to follow that example when he can get away with it on the excuse that "Daddy doesn't eat his spinach."

KNITS FOR HUSBAND

In addition to her regular letters, Mrs. Simonds sends her famous husband at least a parcel a month with the sweaters, socks and gloves she always knits for him. He lost his entire kit on the way to Sicily and Mrs. Simonds has been knitting ever since. She encloses chocolate and tea in the parcels and once recently sent him a tin of sardines before she realized that was a perfect parallel to the proverbial gift of coals to Newcastle.

The general public helps her keep informed of the latest news about Gen. Simonds by writing and telephoning every time he appears in a news story or film. Total strangers send her clippings frequently.

PROUDEST GIRL IN CANADA

"The Proudest Girl in Canada," states the poster, and L-Cpl. Elaine Miller Gibson of Rock Island, Que., who was selected as a model for the Canadian Women's Army Corps latest series of poster cut-outs, really is. She is also very pretty—tall, and a blonde with blue eyes. She enlisted in the C.W.A.C. in April, 1942, and has been driving trucks, utility wagons and jeeps since that time, a typical C.W.A.C., serving Canada.

2 Children Perish From Gas Fumes

TORONTO, Feb. 3—(CP)—Two young children were asphyxiated last night while their mother shopped at a corner store. Mrs. Dorothy Calver found her children, Yvette, 2½, and Noel, 17 months, unconscious in the attic of their home in Toronto's east end. Police said one of the children had turned on two jets of a gas range.

Chamber Seeks Alterations in Tax Structure

The Council of the Chamber of Commerce at its regular Wednesday meeting at the Corona hotel, voted to accept the report of the taxation committee, presented by chairman F. G. Winspear, recommending certain changes in all phases of taxation.

The report will be sent to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Montreal, with the request that the recommendations be taken up with the finance department of the government. Copies of the report will be sent to the principal boards of trade in Canada for their information.

Among the changes suggested is one asking that "marital allowances and allowances for children and dependents should be raised" on the income tax.

"With due recognition to the wartime necessity of encouraging wives to take wartime jobs, the committee nevertheless submits that the propagation of the race and the increase in the birth rate is an important social matter, and that the present income tax structure does not give the encouragement to marriage and the bearing of children which obtains in most of the other great nations."

OTHER POINTS

Some of the other recommendations are that "the committee believes there should be a limit of a period of two years during which interest may be charged until the assessment return is made to the taxpayer; and that "the committee suggests that the right to re-open a claim, both on the part of the taxpayer or the government, should be three years from the date of assessment."

The committee also made several suggestions for amending the Excess Profits Tax Act and establishing a tax advisory council" which would hold periodic public hearings throughout Cnaada with a view to keeping closer touch with the taxpayers and their problems."

The report also suggested "that taxpayers should be permitted to deduct as an expense a provision for repairs constituting a percentage of gross income equivalent to the percentage of gross income applicable to repairs during the years from 1936 to 1939 inclusive or alternately such other four year period as may be reasonable.

A RESERVE

"This amount would then constitute a reserve which could be used immediately after the war for the repair and renovation of buildings and equipment and which would consequently create a back-log of work which would be extremely useful in the reconstruction period."

The meeting also discussed in part the report of the Chamber of Commerce post-war committee. Further discussion will be continued at a future meeting.

T. C. Poulton was admitted to the council as chairman of the retail section, succeeding C. N. Chubb, who has moved to Victoria. President J. Boyd McBride, K.C., was chairman.

Before the Magistrate

Helen Lupel, of Warwick, pleaded guilty to taking a letter, opening it, and removing the cheque she found therein and cashing it, was was placed on suspended sentence for two years on $1,000 recognizance with one surety, by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in city police court, Thursday morning.

Mr. Millar told the accused that post office offences were "extremely serious," and that a minimum sentence of three years could be imposed on offenders. The crown, because of the age of the accused, and because of a previously good record, favored suspended sentence.

Barbara M. Wilson, charged with theft and vagrancy, was remanded in custody of her mother for one week. Bail was set at $750 with one surety.

John Stasak, charged with indecent assault had his case adjourned until Tuesday next.

Joseph Levasseur was found guilty of employing a man who did not get a selective service permit, as required, and was assessed $30 or six weeks.

Mike Kroening, charged with selling a truck at a price higher than the maximum set by the wartime price control board, pleaded not guilty. Evidence given showed that the truck, a 1938 model, was sold for $1,900.

The prosecution stated that a vehicle seven years old could be sold at only 40 per cent of its former value, while the set price of the vehicle, when new, was $2,300. The case was remanded for one week, for judgment.

Health Clinics Are "Effective" Minister Says

Establishment of clinics at Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Edmonton for free diagnosis and treatment of syphilis and gonorrhoea and consultation service for physicians with regard to their treatment problems "has been very effective," in checking the spread of these diseases, Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, provincial health minister, said Thursday.

Dr. Cross outlined steps taken by the government since the Alberta Venereal Diseases' Prevention Act was made effective 24 years ago. The province now is experiencing the "lowest venereal disease rate in our history," he said.

"In 1920 a certain class of our citizens had a venereal disease rate of 16 per cent, but by 1940 this had been reduced to 2.8 per cent. This is a remarkable reduction and we believe a similar relative decrease has occurred in the population as a whole."

Dr. Cross was commenting in regard to a "national hygiene day" campaign by the Health League of Canada to educate the public on the seriousness of venereal diseases.

Report Crown Life Policies At $308,167,791

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—Sturdy strength and notable growth of membership were reported last week at the annual meeting of the Crown Life Insurance Co. by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, president. Crown Life policies in force now number some 131,000 for a total amount of $308,167,791. This figure takes no account of a lrage number of the annuities in force. Mr. Ferguson said all portions of the territory where the company operated have contributed to the increased business.

New policies issued during the year, including income bonds, amounted to $45,200,569 and the total insurance in force increased by $31,540,502. Premiums received amounted to $9,512,888, deposits on behalf of policyholders $1,193,561, and investment income $2,530,002, making total receipts $13,236,452.

Death and disability claims paid amounted to $1,340,406, the mortality record of the company continuing favorable, although somewhat higher than the unusually favorable experience of the past few years. Payments in settlement of matured and surrendered policies, less reinsurance, were $1,105,138; annuity and other payments $668,913; dividends to policyholders $401,861; making total net payments to policyholders and beneficiaries $3,516,321.

ASSETS INCREASE

Assets increased by $7,227,296 to a total of $60,712,986. The principal increase was in government bonds. Policy loans declined slightly and now represent less than 8 per sent of the assets. The average rate of interest realized was 4.32 per cent.

The report shows mortgage loans of $13,218,283, or 22 per cent of assets, while holdings of real estate were reduced by sales and now stand at $169,830. This and the home office property, together account for less than one per cent. of the assets. Holdings of government and municipal bonds of $27,568,430 are 45 per cent of the assets; public utility and other bonds are 12 per cent and preferred and common stocks $3,984,864 are 6½ per cent.

Policy reserves stood at $51,123,639 at the close of 1943, and free surplus carried forward was $2,393,429.

Plan to Issue Latest Ration Book in March

A new ration book will be distributed throughout Canada at the end of March it was announced Thursday by Howard I. Ross, administrator of consumer rationing, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa, who arrived in Edmonton Thursday.

As most of the staple foods are already rationed Mr. Ross said, it is not expected that there will be any more commodities placed in this category. However the new book will contain several sheets of spare coupons in case it suddenly becomes necessary to ration a new item.

There has been a lot of criticism about the waste of all these spare pages of coupons in the old books, Mr. Ross said but it must be remembered that the printing of millions of ration books has been the biggest single printing job ever handled in Canada. These books have to be arranged months in advance.

The new book which will be distributed in March was in the hands of the printers last December and the situation of food supply cannot be accurately judged months in advance so the extra sheets of coupons are an insurance against emergencies.

Mr. Ross, newly appointed to the post of ration administrator, was responsible for the organization of the 600 local ration boards set up in the Dominion. He said their establishment was an interesting experiment and has worked amazingly well.

PROBLEMS DIFFER

"Rationing problems differ in all parts of the country and it is difficult to make regulations that apply in all cases," he said. "The local ration boards have been wonderfully useful in bringing the administration into close touch with the consumer. People in all parts of the country can go to their local ration boards and talk over their problems with local persons who know the conditions and can adjust them."

He had high praise for the work of the thousands of volunteers who handled the distribution of ration books. This was the biggest distribution job ever tackled in this country and it was most successful.

Mr. Ross is making a tour of the western ration offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to get a first-hand view of ration problems in this part of the country.

Wheat Payments Start in March

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Payments on farmers' participation certificates on the 1940 wheat crop will start in March, Trade Minister MacKinnon said yesterday in the Commons. Payments on certificates for the 1941 and 1942 crops will start immediately after 1940 payments are completed, he added, but he said he could not say when payments would be made on the 1943 crop.

Answering a question from John Diefenbaker (P.C., Lake Centre), the minister said payments will be made on all certificates and that farmers who have lost their certificates will not suffer. The Wheat Board had duplicates of all certificates. However, farmers who had lost certificates might have to wait a little longer for their money.

Police Discover Premises Unlocked

In spite of warnings concerning the securing of business places and residences when they are left, eight establishments were said by police to have been found insecure, Wednesday night. One, a meat market, was insecure and upon investigation a refrigerator door was found open, as was the door of a small cabinet, while a dressed chicken was found on the floor. Money left on the premises was intact, police were told by the proprietor of the shop.

Home Building Major Task of Post-War Plan

"One of the major tasks in our post-war program will be the building of new houses and the rehabilitation of the old," said F. Gordon Osler, president of the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation, addressing the annual shareholders' meeting recently. "For these purposes much capital will be required. Some look to governments to supply the bulk of such funds.

"Undoubtedly there is a part for governments to play in the housing field, because in some cases the provision of shelter becomes a social need," continued Mr. Osler. "But by far the major portion of the housing program should be done with private capital, if we are to achieve the best results from a national standpoint in sound and economical house-building."

Mr. Osler pointed out that "federal, provincial and municipal records are strewn with the wreckage of government housing schemes". One plan, however, that could be classed as successful was the National Housing legislation, under which the federal government has co-operated with institutions like the Canada Permanent in erecting homes that are a credit to every community concerned. Over $83,600,000 had been loaned under it, and losses have totalled less than $1,000.

HELP BUILD HOMES

Started nearly 90 years ago by a small group of men who pooled their savings to build homes, the Canada Permanent had continued to meet the expanding need, helping to build the homes of people throughout the country. It had always been ready to meet competition, had honored every obligation and undertaking, and today stood firm as a pillar of security. It faced the future with confidence that it would play an even greater part in the Canada now in the making.

"We hear talk of a socialistic state, under which private capital would wholly or largely disappear," said Mr. Osler. "It is clear that in a socialistic state the 'savings-investment' mechanism, if operated under compulsion, regimentation and political direction, would be monopolistic, more costly, less equitable and therefore less productive than under our present free, democratic system."

It is well to remember, he said, who are our capitalists. Home-owners, farmers, depositors, debenture-holders, shareholders, small business men, the three million buyers of Victory Bonds, are all capitalists, not only through ownership of their own property or goods, but also through the pooling of their savings in banks, insurance companies, trust and loan companies, and in the shares of industrial enterprises.

REAL OWNERS

"These are the real owners of the capital of this country," he declared. "It is their property that would be taken over by a socialistic state. They should actively assert themselves to guard against any such eventuality."

Turning to the Canada Permanent Trust Company, Mr. Osler said its growth had been remarkable. Its business had doubled in the last eleven years, till it now administered $60,000,000 of funds, and ranked with the half-dozen largest trust companies in Canada. Growing public recognition of the valuable services rendered by a trust company in administering private estates, after death or in the individual's lifetime, had been a factor.

ECONOMIC ACTIVITY

Charles S. Robertson, vice-president and general manager, pointed out that the year had been one of unparalleled economic activity. The nation's productive capacity was now double what it was before the war, exports had climbed to new totals and the national income had risen remarkably.

"For the first time in years," said Mr. Robertson, "the Canadian farmer is selling his products at something like a parity with the cost of what he has to buy."

Diversification of western farming caused by the war would tend to be permanent, he thought. "A generation has arisen that understands how to humor the prairie into doing its best," he declared. The war had demonstrated, also, the farmers' readiness to reduce their debts as rapidly as increasing revenue permitted. All across the prairie, they were paying off their obligations.

Boy Gets Ducking In Ice-Cold Water

Eight-year-old Merton Conrad, 10295 89 street, got a ducking in the icy waters of the North Saskatchewan river, Wednesday evening, he told police, and was afraid to go home till he had dried his clothing.

The boy, who made his way to a cafe, in his drenched clothes, stated that he had been playing on the edge of the river when he slipped and submerged to his armpits. He was able to get out of the water unassisted.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—(CP)—After shrinking for sizable losses in today's Toronto Exchange market, gold shares made a partial recovery in the final hour while trading in good volume. Chesterville climbed more than 25 cents to around 1.70, a new top for a year or more. Utilities, base metals and western oils finished slightly lower. Volume was close to 750,000 shares.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Profit taking in rails and selling elsewhere put a fair-sized dent in today's stock market after an early attempt at selective recovery failed to follow through. There was a slowdown in the final hour when extreme losses were trimmed here and there. There were isolated strong spots at the close. Transfers were arounr 1,000,000 shares.

Japanese Troops Flee in Disorder

By DON CASWELL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Feb. 3.—Last disorganized and starving survivors of a once powerful Japanese army were reported fleeing into the Finisterre mountains of northern New Guinea today following an Australian break-through to within 30 miles of a junction with the American at Saidor.

Walled against the sea at a narrow coastal plain between the closing jaws of the Australian-American trap, Japanese units appeared to have "disintegrated into mountainous passes and trails in an escape endeavor," an Allied communique announced.

A dispatch from Guadalcanal reported that American troops, supported by 17 tanks, "now firmly hold" new positions east to the Torokina River mouth on Bougainville Island.

Says Stockpiles Are Only Solution To Coal Surplus

CALGARY, Feb. 3—(CP)—E. J. Brunning, Dominion coal controller, stated here last night the "only solution" to the present surplus of coal in Western Canada is for consumers in the western provinces to build up stockpiles.

Commenting on reports mines in Drumheller were being forced to shut down because of the lack of orders for coal, the controller urged the public to purchase now the coal for next winter.

"It is impossible for the government to re-open markets in Ontario at the present time, because of the transportation situation," Mr. Brunning said. There was little possibility the federal government would purchase coal for a stockpile to alleviate the situation, as this was "hardly feasible," he stated.

Grain Futures Range Narrow

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—(AP)—Grains moved within a narrow range today. Selling which had depressed prices in the past two sessions apparently had dried up but demand failed to develop on a broad scale. The market's tone was steady with most contracts scoring minor fractional gains.

Interest in the wheat market was small because of the closeness of present prices to ceilings, restricting the opportunity for profits on any advance.

Wheat closed ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher, oats were unchanged to ⅛ higher, rye was unchan⅛ed to ⅜ higher, and barley was ⅛ lower to ½ higher.

Wheat: May 1.70¾, July 1.68¼-⅛, Sept. 1.67⅛, Dec. 1.67⅜.

Oats: May 80⅛, July 77⅛, Sept. 75⅜.

Rye: May 1.30¼-⅜, July 1.29⅛-¼, Sept. 1.27⅞, Dec. 1.28¼.

Barley: May 1.22⅜, July 1.20¼, Sept. 1.18¼.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON—After my hurried column yesterday, I want to go back a little and tell you that in Utica, N.Y., I not only talked to the second world war veterans who invited me to come there, but they held an open meeting which was attended by a very large group of people in one of the high school auditoriums. They told of the purposes of their organization and they had a list of questions prepared for me which showed how little most of us have thought through the problems of meeting the returning war veterans' needs now.

We have been so busy getting men in the army ready to go out to fight the war, that we have almost forgotten that already we have a great number of men coming back who need on the statute books, all the legislation we have talked about but have not yet passed for the benefit of the veterans of the war.

I have not yet given you impressions ow my visit to the Cadillac and Packard plants in Detroit. The plants are now employing well over fifty per cent. women and the problems seem to be exactly what they have always been. How does a woman work in a factory all day, get her washing and cleaning done, cook the meals and give any care to her children? The care of the children is the only one of these problems that seems to have been tackled by the community and that is not adequately met.

In the child care centre which I visited, where day care is given, there is also an experimental boarding school where children, aged two to five, are accepted for six days a week. The mothers take them home only for their free day.

I think this arrangement proved very successful in Great Britain and it seems to be popular in Detroit, as they have many more applications than they are able to take under the present set-up. The problem of shopping is solved; the laundry problem is not solved. The problem of hot noon meals for children in schools is partially solved by canteens which have been set up in certain areas, but these are not completely satisfactory as yet, and the problem of hot meals for workers in the factory is still completely neglected. Only in a few cases are meals being cooked for women to take home in their own containers. Some restaurants are not giving this service.

So we see that there is still much work to be done by communities if the home is not to suffer by the full time employment of women in factory work to the extent that is now necessary.

I want to tell you about the air force hospital at Bowman Field, Ky. The work done for the rehabilitation of its patients while they are in the hospital is thrilling, but that and more about the training of our "flying nurses" will have to wait until tomorrow.

McCoy Health Service

During the last year I notice that I am receiving more letters about Angina Pectoris than at any time previous. From this I believe that the disorder is becoming more common which is to be expected, since worry or strain tend to bring on this disorder and due to the war many people have been on a prolonged tension.

However, it is well to remember that a pain in the region of the heart which may make the patient fear Angina Pectoris may actually be due to some other cause such as a form of neuralgia. If you have any spasmodic pains over the heart region, or down the left arm, the best plan is to have a doctor examine you to find out whether you are in any danger of developing Angina Pectoris. Sometimes the trouble is what is known as False Angina or Pseudo Angina.

Angina Pectoris, or "Breast-Pang" is the name given to a disease of the blood vessels of the heart. In severe forms there is usually a hardening of the coronary arteries. The symptoms develop because of an interference with the proper circulation of blood.

The outstanding symptoms are shortness of breath and a spasmodic pain occurring in the left side of the chest. Often the pain may radiate down the left arm. The pain may be agonizing and the heart feel clogged or constricted. The heart beat is changed and the patient experiences an alarming fear. In true Angina the pain lasts for a few seconds or a minute or two. The disease develops in those of middle age, who have followed habits of living which are "not good" for a sufficient length of time to bring about a degeneration of the arteries.

The underlying cause of Angina Pectoris is living in such a way that you build up a systemic toxemia, which in turn causes the arteries to harden. Coupled with the fundamental toxic cause there is an emotional or nervous cause. The patient has nearly always been under a strain due to mental work done at high tension or he has been worried over a period of several years. It is well known that anger or excitement will serve to bring on the attacks in the patient with a tendency to the disorder. Such exertion such as running or climbing stairs may throw too much of a strain on the damaged arteries which cannot supply blood to the heart fast enough, thus bringing on an attack. Another cause which may serve to produce an attack is the distension of the stomach, either by gas or by overeating, causing a pressure against the heart.

If you have Angina Pectoris, there is a great deal you can do. During an attack when the pain is noted, and the heart is too fast, use cold applications over the heart for about thirty minutes. If the pulse is slow, hot compresses are better. These patients are benefited by a fast, using orange juice, tomato juice or grapefruit juice, and two enemas daily. Several sponge baths should be taken each day. Follow the fast with careful diet, omitting those foods which cause gas. It is also important to cultivate mental calmness. If you have Angina, the destructive emotions such as fear, worry or excitement are two expensive for you to indulge in them.

If you will follow these rules of wise living you will be able to improve to the extent where your life is prolonged and in many cases where the treatment is started in time, recovery may be expected.

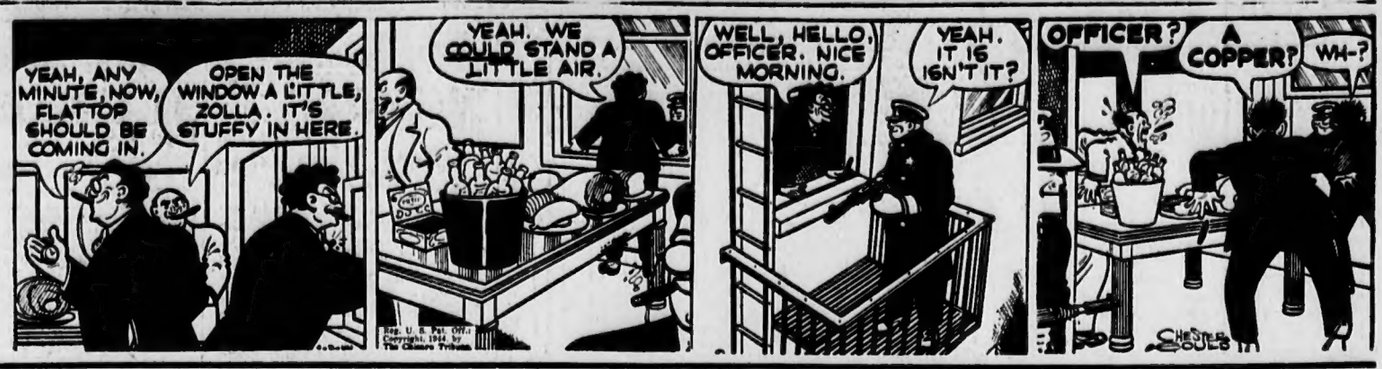

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Medicine Hat Citizens Ask Vote Extension

One thousand four hundred and ninety citizens of Medicine Hat, headed by R. H. Kent, W. M. Rae and Mrs. L. W. Price, will apply to the Alberta Legislative Assembly for an amending act to the Medicine Hat city charter, it was learned in Edmonton today.

Amendments to be requested by the petitioners are: To extend the franchise to permit adults other than property owners to vote; to permit women to hold office as mayor and aldermen; and to abolish the property qualifications for mayor and aldermen.

The petitioners' body in the southern city, apparently strongly organized, has collected funds to cover cost of obtaining the amendments, and has also secured legal counsel. One expense is a $200 deposit required when private bills are submitted to the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly.

It is not known as yet whether the City of Medicine Hat will oppose granting of the charter amendments, when the bill is in the committee stage of legislation.

CONTROVERSIAL SUBJECT

The municipal franchise question in Medicine Hat has been the subject of much controversy there, and if the latest petition is to be, opposed, a hotly-contested debate on the subject can be expected in the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature.

Two more new notices of private bills have also been received by Clerk of the Assembly Robert A. Andison, one from the City of Calgary asking for certain charter amendments, and one from the United Farmers of Alberta, asking for power to buy and sell on a co-operative basis, to manufacture and process farm supplies, and to operate general stores. The total number of bills now stands at ten.

Start Hearing Conversion Case

First of five charges against Andrew Menzies, former adjutant of the Edmonton division, Canadian Corps of Commissionaires, was begun Wedensday morning before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in city police court. The charge was that the accused, having received $518 from the Edmonton Exhibition Association, in July 1941, requiring him to pay same to the Corps of Commissionaires, had fraudulently converted $200 of that amount to his own use and thereby committed theft.

Evidence of three witnesses was heard—that of the chairman of the Edmonton division of the Corps (board of governors) who told the court that Menzies had been adjutant of this division in July, 1941, and who, in the course of his duties, would receive the money of the association. There was no rule that all money had to be deposited in the bank.

The corps bookkeeper told of making an entry in his books for $518 on July 29, 1941, and said that this money had been paid to the association by the exhibition association for the services of corps members during fair week, July 14 to 19.

Paymaster for the exhibition said he could not recall how much had been paid to the commissionaires at that time, as it had been a cash transaction, a procedure of the fair board for many years, so far as the paying of hired help was concerned.

Large Wolf Shot In Barrhead Area

Lloyd Dehnke is a marked man in the Barrhead area today. A day or two ago he was near his home, 14 miles north of Barrhead and he had with him his 32-40 rifle.

He spotted a black timber wolf and, taking aim, fired. The wolf although hit, tried to escape. A second shot also failed to bring the animal down. But the third shot did the trick. The wolf fell to the ground lifeless.

On being measured the animal was found to be 32 inches high and six feet eight inches long. It weighed 135 pounds.

Air Power

Thunderbolt Is Effective

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

Dispatches from the West European front disclose that our high-altitude fighter plane, the Thunderbolt, is being used effectively for bombing purposes at low altitude. Its most recent action in this capacity was against airfields in the Netherlands from which Nazi fighter squadrons operate to intercept Allied bombers en route to Germany. It seems only fitting that in attacking these hornets' nests we should make use of our own hornets.

The news indicates that the so-called fighter-bomber—a fighter plane with bombing power added to it—is now a firmly established member of the military aircraft family. The idea has an interesting history and evolution.

de Seversky

The transformation of fighters into bombers was often forced upon fliers in the First World War. I recall such an episode, for instance, toward the end of 1917 in the Baltic Sea, where I was stationed. To protect their navy during its break into the Gulf of Riga, the Germans threw in so many fighters that only our own fighters could remain in the air. Out of necessity, therefore, we improvised bombracks on our fighters and put them to work against German naval targets.

The lessons of such early combat experience were not forgotten, and in the United States, too, the Air Forces for many years went on the assumption that fighters might have to do bombing service under certain conditions. But for some inexplicable reason these lessons were crossed out here in 1938, a year before the new World War got started. At that time new Army Air Corps specifications were issued eliminating bombracks on all new fighter planes. To airmen with combat memories this looked like tactical heresy but the order remained in force until a fairly recent date.

IMPROVISED BOMBERS

In the present war, the first use of fighters as bombers came in the Battle fo Britain. The Germans found that they could not use their bombers in daylight over England. They therefore made improvised bombers out of their Messerschmitts. While the explosive loads these could carry were very small, the additional speed enabled them to apply the element of surprise to better advantage and to make their get-away more easily. While individual Messerschmitts scored successes, the procedure as a whole was a failure. The Germans in effect were trying to use fighters for strategic or demolition bombardment, but puny doses of TNT are futile in any such attempt.

The Allies first used fighter-bombers in the early African campaigns. The British had nothing to match the German dive-bombers and decided to convert their Hurricanes into bombers. The Hurricane, rather than the Spitfire, was uased for this purpose because it was more suited to low altitude work and because its much larger wing area made it possible to add bombracks without affecting performance too seriously.

FIGHTER-BOMBERS

At the American end, we found that our Kitty-Hawks were no match for German fighters at high levels. Neither could they compare in performance with the Spitfire, primarily because their Allison engine could not develop sufficient horespower. We therefore improvised them as fighter-bombers, rechristened as Kittybombers. The success of such improvisation reflected great credit on the resourcefulness of our personnel on the battle fronts, since the plane had not been basically designed for such tasks.

Finally convinced by the realities of warfare, the 1938 specifications were cancelled out and bombracks have been installed on most of our new fighters ever since. The experience with converted fighters was utilized to good effect with the North American fighter P-51 which, though designed as a fighter, began its military career as a bomber, again because of the handicap of the Allison engine. The conversion, however, was a decision made at the manufacturing plant, not improvised under pressure.

The resultant plane, called the A-36 Invader, therefore turned out to be best fighter-bomber, taking the lead over all enemy as well as Allied planes. Since then, of course, the plane, equipped with a Rolls-Royce engine, has emerged as one of the best fighters extant.

The debut of the Thunderbolt in a bombing role holds promise of great usefulness. That plane, somewhat larger than other fighters, should be able to carry a bigger wallop or bomb load than any of the ohters when used as a fighter-bomber.

EXCESS WEIGHT

The one tactical disadvantage of the Thunderbolt has been the excess weight which it unfortunately picked up in production. This makes its "power loading"—the number of pounds per horsepower—too high, so that at levels below 25,000 feet it is definitely inferior to the best British and German fighters. Its superiority above that level is clear-cut by reason of its turbo-supercharger. This device enabled the Thunderbolt to carry its full horsepower far above 25,000 feet, with the ratio of weight to power remaining unchanged. Other fighters, by contrast, begin to lose horsepower as they rise to higher levels, so that their "power loading" becomes greater than the Thunderbolt's.

Constant refinement of power plants tends to overcome the effect of altitude for all fighters. The fact that the Thunderbolt is being used as a bomber against fighter airfields, certainly a low-altitude operation, would indicate that more horsepower is now being gotten out of the engine, thus compensating for the initial overweight. We may find, therefore, that the plane designed and successful at super-altitudes will stand us in good stead also at normal altitudes as a fighter-bomber.

Minister Warns Social Disease Takes Big Toll

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(CP)—Venereal diseases constitute "the greatest public health problem in Canada today . . . every day hundreds of young Canadian men and women are being infected," Health Minister Mackenzie said last night.

"Every day the very welfare of the country is being undermined by these diseases," he added in an address prepared for delivery over the Trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as part of a "National Hygiene Day" campaign by the Health League of Canada to educate the public on the seriousness of venereal diseases.

Provincial health ministers or their deputies spoke after Mr. Mackenzie.

SERIOUS THREAT

Gonorrhoea and syphilis, the two common venereal diseases, hold out a threat which must not be underestimated, the federal minister said.

"Throughout the country, in Canadian hospitals, hundreds of beds are occupied by people suffering from the late effects of syphilis. Mental hospitals care for an appalling number of people who are mentally ill from that cause.

"Each year, hundreds of babies are born in this country infected with syphilis which has been passed to them by their parents.

Most tragic feature of the picture, however, is that all this wastage and wreckage is needless, he added. Spread of venereal diseases was due in large measure to ignorance.

EDUCATION NEEDED

"Canadians must be made aware of the nature of these diseases what they are, how they spread, how serious they are, how they may be cured and—most important of all—how they may be prevented. Only when Canadians know these facts can we hope to stamp out the plague which is exacting so frightful a toll.

"To long have the facts been hidden behind a veil of prudery and false modesty. Fortunately, we have now reached the state where these things can be brought into the light."

The minister said the federal and provincial governments and medical officers in the armed forces have been trying to wipe out the diseases and prevent their spread. But elimination of the diseases could not be successful until the public became conscious of the seriousness of the threat to their health.

"The venereal diseases must go. It is up to every last Canadian man and woman to see they do go," he said.
